TAFT EXTOLS 'NEW WOMAN' TO COLLEGE GIRLS

PHILADELPHIA, June 2.—In a striking address on higher education for women, delivered at the graduating exercises of Bryn Mawr College here to-day, President Taft uttered a flattering endorsement of the new woman. At the same time he extolled the family life, the hapiness of which he declared was brightened by placing woman on an intellectual equality with man.

EDUCATION FOUNDATION FOR SUCCESS.

"The professions to which women are fitted are increasing in number, and the opportunity for professional work is coming to women in a far greater degree than ever before in the history of the world," said the President, "and for the women who are to engage in the professions, the prime qualifications for success is the solid foundation of an academic education.

"Professional men and women have succeeded without this, but the voice of every educator is raised in favor of the thorough academic education of those, whether men or women, who are called upon to teach in the secondary and primary schools of the nation. And no one who knows the exigencies and trials of the professions of medicine, law or theology can doubt the advantage of the mental training and discipline that a collegiate education gives to this country.

"I dissent from the view that an academic education unfits a man or woman for business. It may be that the tastes that lead one to an academic education are not those which insure business success, but that the mental discipline, the power of reasoning, the cultivation and comparison of ideas, are not of assistance in business transactions in which the highest qualities of the mind are acutely in action can hardly be true.

Marriage and Motherhood.

"But it is said that women are not all going into the professions and that the education necessary as a basis for a professional career is not needed by those women who have a competency or who look forward to marriage and motherhood as the chief end of woman.

"It is even suggested that the higher education of women rather unfits them to discharge the duties of a wife and mother; that in some way or other it robs them of a charm and gives them an intellectual independence that is inconsistent with their being the best wives and mothers. I utterly dissent from this view.

"The companionship of married life is the chief charm and reason for its being, so far as it relates to thetwo persons concerned. The enjoyment of the home, with children and the training of them are, of cours, among the most important duties and pleasures of married life, and it certainly does not detract from the power of a woman to make a good companion or to teach and train her children up to high ideals that she should have the advantage of her children.

"I am quite ready to concede that marriage and motherhood are a normal status for woman, and other things being equal she is happier in that condition than in any other. But this is far from saying that a woman's life is a failure because she has not married and that her life may not be a failure because she has married.

Value of Independence.

"The home and the family are the nucleus of the highest happiness, but if circumstances are such as to force women to accept husbands whom they do not respect and love, and whom they would not marry except to escape a life of poverty, the home and the family are not likely to be a model or to furnish an ideal.

"One of the great advantages of the higher education for a woman in my judgment is in the independence that it gives her in the choice of the kind of life she is to lead. A woman with that kind of education can ordinarily support herself. She can select a profession. And if she never meets the man who she believes can make her happy as a husband she can become an independent and useful member of society.

Married Life Made Happier.

"It is this independence of life that is sure to make married life when it comes happier. It is the dependency upon marriage as a sine qua non that creates the marital tragidies that we see too frequently and the unhappiness of two and the wrecking of even more than two lives."

IN USE AGAIN

ROOSEVELT SPEECH MAY CAUSE REVOLT

CAIRO, Egypt, June 2.—Distinct uneasiness s feilt here as the result of Theodore Roosevelt's attack on the Nationalists and the character of the Egyptians, in his London speech. It is known that the police have materially strengthened their positions, in expectation of demonstrations. Mr. Roosevelt is the object of a storm of denunciation from the Nationalists, uttered in the native press and by speakers.

Mass meetings have been held in several quarters of the city attacking him. The most radical of the Nationalists demand a concerted move now for a native Assembly and a constitution. Sheikh Yousseff Ali, editor of the Elmoyad, the chief Moslem paper, condemns Roosevelt, expressing surprise that an American should hold such views as he professes. Dr. Nilme Dogen, another powerful editor, and Ali Bey Fahmy Kamel, also attack the ex-President severely.

BRITAIN FEARS SERIOUS RESULTS FROM ADDRESS

LONDON, June 2.—Grave fears for the results of Theodore Roosevelt's Guildhall speech on Egypt are felt by the Liberal leaders.

While it is reported in authoritative circles that the attack on the Government's policy to a certain extent pleased King George, whose sympathies are with the Conservatives, the effect of the ex-President's denunciation upon the Egyptian Nationalists is looked forward to with anxiety.

With Mr. Roosevelt already the object of the Nationalists' hatred because of his Cairo speech attacking them, further demonstrations are looked for by those familiar with the situation, especially in view of the fact that this speech was given at the moment when Mr. Roosevelt was being honored by London.

The comment to-day on the Guildhall speech is more caustic than that of yesterday. William T. Stead, editor of the English Review of Reviews, says:

"Since I tried to teach my grandmother how to suck eggs I have not seen anything quite like it. From the viewpoint of a circus it is absolutely beyond praise."

The Liberal leaders to-day expressed gratification that two prominent Americans, William R. Hearst and William J. Bryan, had expressed condemnation of the Roosevelt utterances.

Mr. Hearst's statement issued in Paris is given prominence in the London papers. The fact that Mr. Hearst calls Mr. Roosevelt "a tin soldier" and declares that, having "shocked and outraged" patriotic Americans, he should return to his own land, is the subject of much comment.

Mr. Bryan's milder strictures were delivered at a Y. M. C. A. meeting at Bradford.

The indications are to-day that while for the most part the attitude is to let Mr. Roosevelt's speech pass by, there may be a move to make the issues he has raised important in the next political campaign now believed to be but a few months off. While the Conservatives may do this, astute politicians believe that the effect on the populace would not be that desired, the people as a whole not relishing outside criticism.

SWEEPING RAILROAD WARFARE

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The United States Government is upon the verge of war against the railroads of even greater breadth and significance than the fights against the Standard Oil Company and the Tobacco Trust. It is understood that the injunction suit to prevent the Western trunk line committee from raising freight rates on the Western lines is but a test case, the Government having in preparation suits for the dissolution of every similar railroad body in the country.

Makes Triple Attack.

The department of justice is making a triple attack on the railroads. The first step is the injunction granted at Hannibal, Mo., restraining the roads from enforcing the increases. The second will be an equity suit for the dissolution of the trunk line committee. The third is a proceeding for contempt of court for violation of the injunction granted several years ago in the trans-Mississippi freight case. By far the most important is the dissolution suit.

The Government has already scored a victory over the roads, in that it has so manoeuvred the case that the burden of proof has fallen upon the defendants in the injunction suit. According to the officials of the Department of Justice the roads must prove that the injunction should be dissolved instead of the Government proving that it must be sustained.

Sherman Law Used.

The prosecution is in the hands of Frederick N. Judson, who appeared as special assistant attorney-general in the preliminaries of securing the injunction, and the dissolution fight, which is to be conducted in the same manner as the Oil and Tobacco Trust cases and the Harriman merger, will be left under his direction.

In the administration railroad bill there was a provision legalizing the making of agreements by the roads subject to the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission. This clause was stricken out. The Government is now proceeding under the Sherman anti-trust law to halt the alleged illegal rate making.

C. E. Fulton, agent for the railroads, has filed new tariff sheets with the Interstate Commerce Commission which will advance the rates on many commodities, moving in carloads from Chicago and Indianapolis and points basing on these cities. The new rates will take effect July 1 and represent an advance from 6 to 31 per cent.

Telegrams were received by Wickersham from Western shipping interests asking that the injunction against the railroads be supplemented by another injunction in order that the action may contemplate a stay against advances in other rates which the association has made. Replies stated that it was now too late to file further proceedings and that the government's case would have to be based on the injunction filed before Judge Dyer.

CHARGE SECRECY IN RATE CASE WAS USED IN MARKET

WASHINGTON, June 2.—There is ugly talk in Washington regarding the manner in which the fact of the bringing of the injunction suits in Hannibal, Mo., by the Government aagainst twenty-five railroads was used by certain powerful interests and individuals to take advantage of the stock market. No one, of course, knows how much they made, but from the drop in railroad and other stocks it is believed the profits amounted to hundreds of thousands of dollars, possibly millions.

Probability of a demand for congressional investigation was discussed to-day.

On Tuesday morning Attorney-General Wickersham made the following public statement to the press in referring to the request of a number of important shippers that he take action to prevent twenty-five railroads from increasing freight rates commencing June 1:

"I do not think it will be necessary to take any action in this matter immediately, nor do I think it will be wise for the President to send any special message to Congress to-day on the matter, as was urged by the delegation of shippers whom I saw yesterday."

Wickersham openly admitted that as long ago as last Friday he had decided to institute injunction proceedings, while at midnight of Saturday he sent Assistant Attorney-General Grosvenor to St. Louis for the purpose of filing the papers.

The keeping back of information gave ample opportunity to persons who were in a position to know what was going on behind the scenes to place heavy selling orders with brokerage houses, and be in a position to take advantage of the slump when the announcement of the suit became generally known and thereby "clean up" immediate profits.

It is thought that the bad impression created by these circumstances may result in an investigation which will result in one of the most sensational scandals that has been known in Washington for years and rivalling the scandal created some years ago when a number of Senators were shown to take advantage of the stock market through information concerning impending legislation which would affect sugar stocks violently.

KELIHER WITNESS TELLS OF SECRET OFFICE SCHEMES

Telegraph Wires That Did Not Extend Beyond Room Declared to Have Been Found In "Marshall & Co.'s" State Street Place.

A telegraph instrument with a wire that did not run out of the room, that might have been used for "fake" ire tapping, was found in Room 310 of No. 110 State street, which was occupied last December and the first of this year by Martin J. Walsh, the reputed head of the faro gang that is alleged to have caused the downfall of George W. Coleman, and his cronies.

CHARGE RACING GAME WAS WORKED HERE.

This was testified to to-day in the trial of "Big Bill" Kelliher, who is accused of helping Coleman rob the bank. It was also declared by one witness that Kelliher himself was seen in this room last January. Yesterday stationery printed for "John R. Marshall & Co." showed that this firm posed as managers of a Western Union Racing Department.

The government claims that the Marshall outfit, Walsh, Kelliher and others, had a fake telegraph outfit in this room just across the street from the Western Union office and in the same building as the Postal office, and that they laid for victims in connection with the races.

The janitor and an elevator boy of No. 110 State street, both identified pictures of Martin J. Walsh as those of the John R. Marshall, who occupied room No. 301 in the building last December and January. It was the janitor, John J. McGreevy, who swore that he saw Kelliher in the room.

The picture of James Strausnelder, held in New York on the charge of helping Coleman loot the bank, was introduced in evidence to-day. Daniel H. Coakley, of counsel for Kelliher, remarked:

"That will help a lot."

Witnesses were asked if they had seen Strausnelder (showing them his picture) in the State stret room, but no one could say that he had seen him.

Cashier Earl Accused.

One of the startling features of to-day's proceedings was the accusation by Lawyer Harvey H. Pratt of Kelliher's counsel, that Frank L. Earl, cashier of the Cambridge National City Bank at the time Coleman was stealing its money, knew that Coleman was robbing the bank.

Judge Hale ruled that the cross-examination of Cashier Earl could not continue until that of Coleman was finished. Mr. Pratt wanted to proceed and in arguing his point declared that he was ready to prove that prior to the closing of the bank Cashier Earl, who was a depositor, drew out every cent he had there.

Mr. Pratt offered to prove that the attention of Cashier Earl was called in 1909 by a depositor named Lombard "to Coleman's mode of life and to the manner and means in which he was getting his money." Judge Hale ruled that this was a matter of defence and not of cross-examination, so Mr. Earl left the stand, but was ordered to remain in court, subject to recall to the witness stand.

Earl is sixty years of age, gray haired, and is so deaf that it was difficult for him to hear questions.

Say Walsh Is "Marshall."

Miss Mamie Hightower was recalled to the stand and questioned by Lawyer Daniel H. Coakley for the defence as to her property. She said that her $7,000 worth of real estate in Kansas City is in her father's name. The $2,800 which she has in the Franklin Trust Company in New York, Miss Hightower testified, was in her own name. She said she had earned this money.

George W. Brainard, a real estate agent, testified that he rented Room No. 301 of No. 110 State street last December to John R. Marshall. He said he saw Marshall several times and that he ceased to be a tenant there March 3, last. The two photographs of Martin J. Walsh, the head of the faro gang, which are in the case, were shown to Brainard and he at once recognized them as pictures of the John R. Marshall who rented the rooms from him.

The witness said that there was some telegraph wiring in the room that Marshall used.

Miss Hightower Again Present.

Miss Mamie Hightower was in her accustomed place in the courtroom. She glanced about, evidently searching for Coleman, but he was not present. Miss Hightower again sat beside Mrs. Walter Coleman, the mother of the convicted bank clerk. His father was also in court.

Mr. French asked to have put in evidence copies of the Old Farmers' Almanac for the years 1907, 1909 and 1910. It was supposed that they were to be used to prove weather conditions, and the time of the sunset during the days when Coleman was making flying trips to New York with the bank's money in his pocket.

Cashier Frank L. Earl, of the National City Bank of Cambridge, was recalled for cross-examination by Attorney Harvey Pratt.

Q.—Mr. Earl, I ask you to look at the books under the date of December 6, 1909, the first day mentioned in the indictment and ask you to tell me the names of the largest depositors there. Was the President, Mr. Dresser, one of them? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Mr. Frank A. Kennedy? A.—Yes.

Dresser's Balance $39,068.

Q.—George W. Gale, another? A.—Yes.

Q.—The City of Cambridge? A.—Yes.

Q.—And the Standard Action Company? A.—Yes.

Q.—Now look at Mr. Dresser's account

CONROY GIVEN LIFE TERM FOR KILLING WIFE

Edward J. Conroy was sentenced by Judge Wait in the Superior Criminal Court to-day to State prison for life. Conroy retracted his former plea of not guilty to the charge of murder in the first degree and plead guilty to murder in the second degree. District Attorney Pelletier approved of this course.

Conroy killed his wife Bridget at No. 541 East First street, South Boston, February 13. He was indicted by the Grand Jury at the March sitting. He was represented by Joseph P. Lyons.

Conroy weighs 200 pounds. On the night of the murder he had been drinking and quarreled with his wife. She left him soon after and went to church to attend devotions. On her return Conroy renewed his quarrel with her and literally beat her to death.

MELLEN STOCK BILL GOES TO STATE SENATE

President Charles S. Mellen's bill to validate the $121,000,000 capital stock of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad was formally filed in the State Senate to-day through Senator William Turtle of Pittsfield, chairman of the Committee on Railroads. Turtle's committee voted last Tuesday to report favorably on the measure, but the draft of the bill did not appear until to-day. No dissenters are recorded on the committee report, but it is understood that Representative Robert M. Washburn of Worcester reserves his right to dissent.

The main feature of the bill is that it allows the Railroad Commission, Tax Commissioner and Bank Commissioner, sitting jointly, to validate such stock and bonds as they find secured.

Washburn is expected to offer an amendment directing the joint commission to do nothing but investigate the road's financial and physical condition, report its findings to next year's Legislature and leave the matter of validating stocks and bonds to the Legislature.

The bill authorizes the commissioners to examine the assets and liabilities of the company for the purpose of ascertaining whether and to what extent the aggregate corporate assets are sufficient to secure its outstanding obligations.

Section 2 provides that the commission shall file certificate of its findings with the Secretary of State on or before the first day of January, 1911. Upon the filing of the certificate the capital stock and indebtedness is authorized to be such an amount not exceeding its present outstanding capital stock and indebtedness as the commission shall find to be warranted.

Section 3 provides that "the commission shall report to the General Court, recommend such legislation as to it shall seem wise for the future regulation of issues of capital stock and other obligations by railroad companies."

DAY OFF FOR CITY LABORERS

Because the city laborers receive no vacation, Mayor Fitzgerald will send to the City Council to-morrow an order requesting the Council to authorize a day off to all city employes, members of the Knights of Labor who wish to attend the annual picnic of the organization.

"It seems to me," says the Mayor, "only proper that they should be permitted to enjoy this brief respite from toil without being deprived of wages which most of them can ill afford to lose. It is the opinion of the Corporation Counsel that while the heads of departments cannot legally grant holidays without loss of pay, the City Council has the authority to do so.

"I recommend that your honorable body take such action as will authorize heads of departments to grant holidays without loss of pay under circumstances similar to those that have arisen in the Park Department."

AMERICAN LEAGUE GROUNDS, St. Louis, June 2.—The Red Sox resembled a lot of wild colts when they got in the field to ramble with the Browns. They were glad that the long jump to the Mound City was over, and it felt good to them to get out on the springy turf and exercise.

After what the Speed Boys did to the locals in Beantown the fans expected them to show some pennant ball, as great things had been heard about the way Donovan's warriors were making the other clubs travel.

Manager O'Connor's boys had been going so badly of late that he fans were feeling a bit sore at their showing, but were ready to give them every ncouragment when they showed spasms of tumbling the visitors.

Joe Wood, the fast youngster, was slated to open the ball for the Red Sox, while Manager O'Connor thought he might spring some of his southpaw material to see how it worked.

SOUTH END GROUNDS, June 2.—The fans still had confidence that the Doves could take the measure of the Cubs, even if the Windy City bunch did hold the top perch in the race just now. The Doves trimmed them a couple of times right on their own stamping grounds and that was good enough to make the loyal home supporters believe that the Cubs were in for more beatings before they could get away.

The Cubs looked pretty classy and were never in better speeding form during the season, but the Doves were likely to come from behind at any stage and give the Cubs a jolt they wouldn't forget.

Husk Chance, the fighting manager of the Cubs, had his string of pitchers take the wrinkles out of their arms as he planned to pick the best marksman of the lot. Cole, the new recruit looked pretty good, and it was a toss-up between him and Pfiester to shoulder the job.

The new bridegroom, Clif Curtis, was about due to perform. His great pitching on the western trip created keen interest with the fans to see him fire the slants.

Mrs. Israels's Work Against Dangerous Dance Halls

We Prefer Her Attitude to That of Mr. Gaynor, the Mayor of New York

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

No exercise for young people is better than dancing. Nothing is more cheerful, more delightful than the pleasure of keeping time to music—it is the establishment of physical and mental harmony on a high plane.

It should be easy for all the young boys and girls of the country to dance as often as they please. Opposition to it is preposterous and out of date.

BUT THE MOST SHAMEFUL THING IMAGINABLE IS THE CRIME OF MEN THAT ESTABLISH DANCE HALLS AND CONDUCT THEM ON A DEGRADED, IMMORAL BASIS.

There are many such dance halls in all the great cities.

In the city of New York, Mrs. Charles H. Israels has undertaken a necessary work by opposing the dangerous dance halls. At a meeting in Cooper Union she testified to the effect of these immoral resorts.

She quoted the superintendent of the Bedford Home for Women, who said that a thousand girls had come under her supervision—and every one of them had made the downward start in some badly conducted dance hall.

Mrs. Israels said also that it was not her intention to discourage dancing, to interfere with the innocent amusement of young people. On the contrary, she and others interested in philanthropic work are unobstrusively supporting and superintending certain dance halls—and a number of these are already established, not only on an absolutely moral basis, but also on a commercially profitable basis.

Mrs. Israels is entitled to the thanks of the community for the work that she is doing to protect young girls. Her attitude and work contrast most favorably with the attitude of Mr. Gaynor, the Mayor of New York.

This gentleman is quoted in the New York World as saying that the authorities should be "slow" about interfering with dance halls. And his magnificently convincing argument is: "I used to dance a great deal when I was young, and I never noticed that it did ME any harm."

Mr. Gaynor apparently forgot for the moment that Mrs. Israels and others are not interested in knowing what had happened to HIM when he went to dance halls.

They are interested, on the contrary, in WHAT HAPPENS TO YOUNG WOMEN THAT GO TO SUCH INSTITUTIONS. And the fact that a Mayor or any number of Mayors should be perfectly contented with their share in the dance hall proceedings is no argument at all against protecting young women who go to dance halls conducted badly.

Mayor Gaynor should revise his attitude, find out from Mrs. Israels and others what the facts are, and do what he can to interfere with the management of dance halls criminally conducted and loosely supervised—depraved institutions that bring about the destruction of the bodies and souls of so many girls.

Violent Exercise Is Bad for Girls

Brooklyn's Board of Education Is Wise in Its Decision. Fathers of Girls Please Make a Note of This

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

The athletic young women in Brooklyn Manual Training High School planned elaborately a day of outdoor sports.

The plans are now modified by the Board of Education, which rules as follows:

Girls must not run in races exceeding fifty yards in length.

They must not compete in violent exercise, such as high jumping, putting the shot, hurdle racing, and so on.

The girls are obliged to content themselves with fifty-yard races, competitions in throwing a baseball and throwing a basketball.

Naturally, these high school girls are indignant. They think that they have a right to injure their health permanently with violent effort if they want to. But they HAVEN'T such a right.

Women are not INTENDED or made to exercise violently. They cannot stand great physical strain. They have more important work to do. The strain that is put upon woman as a mother is greater than any strain that man ever endures. That is about all a woman should undertake.

Thousands of girls ruin their health skipping rope too long, trying which can keep on longest.

Recently there has developed and there has been encouraged among young girls a craze for so-called "Marathon dancing." In these competitions the girls strive for prizes that go to the girl that can continue dancing longer than any other girl. Some of these girls have danced for hours at a time.

The men who promote such contests for money are criminals and the police should attend to them just exactly as though they were guilty of a dangerous assault.

Fathers and mothers should realize the difference between girls and boys. The boys should be protected from exercise that is TOO violent. The girls should be forbidden to undertake violent exercise at all times.

At the same time he extolled the family life, the hapiness of which he declared was brightened by placing woman on an intellectual equality with man.

EDUCATION FOUNDATION FOR SUCCESS.

"The professions to which women are fitted are increasing in number, and the opportunity for professional work is coming to women in a far greater degree than ever before in the history of the world," said the President, "and for the women who are to engage in the professions, the prime qualifications for success is the solid foundation of an academic education.

"Professional men and women have succeeded without this, but the voice of every educator is raised in favor of the thorough academic education of those, whether men or women, who are called upon to teach in the secondary and primary schools of the nation. And no one who knows the exigencies and trials of the professions of medicine, law or theology can doubt the advantage of the mental training and discipline that a collegiate education gives to this country.

"I dissent from the view that an academic education unfits a man or woman for business. It may be that the tastes that lead one to an academic education are not those which insure business success, but that the mental discipline, the power of reasoning, the cultivation and comparison of ideas, are out of [illegible] in business transactions in which the highest qualities of the mind are actively in action can hardly be true.

Marriage and Motherhood.

"But it is said that women are now all going into the professions and that the education necessary as a basis for a professional career is not needed by those women who have a competency or who look forward to marriage and motherhood as the chief end of woman.

"It is even suggested that the higher education of women rather unfits them to discharge the duties of a wife and mother; that in some way or other it robs them of a charm and gives them an intellectual independence that is inconsistent with their being the best wives and mothers. I utterly dissent from this view.

"The companionship of married life is the chief charm and reason for its being, so far as it relates to the two persons concerned. The enjoyment of the home, with children and the training of them are, of course, among the most important duties and pleasures of married life, and it certainly does not detract from the power of a woman to make a good companion or to teach and train her children up to high ideals that she should have the advantage of her education.

"I am quite ready to concede that marriage and motherhood are a normal status for woman, and other things being equal she is happier in that condition than in any other. But this is far from saying that a woman's life is a failure because she has not married and that her life may not be a failure because she has married.

Value of Independence.

"The home and the family are the nucleus of the highest happiness; but if circumstances are such as to force women to accept husbands whom they do not respect and love, and whom they would not marry except to escape a life of poverty, the home and the family are not likely to be a model or to furnish an ideal.

"One of the great advantages of the higher education for a woman in my judgment is in the independence that it gives her in the choice of the kind of life she is to lead. A woman with that kind of education can ordinarily support herself. She can enter a profession. And if she never meets the man who she believes can make her happy as a husband she can become an independent and useful member of society.

Married Life Made Happier.

"It is this independence of life that is sure to make married life when it comes happier. It is the dependency upon marriage as the only [illegible] that creates the marital tragedies that we see too frequently and the unhappiness of two and the wrecking of even more than two lives."

CONROY GIVEN LIFE TERM FOR KILLING WIFE

Edward J. Conroy was sentenced by Judge Wait in the Superior Criminal Court to-day to State prison for life. Conroy retracted his former plea of not guilty to the charge of murder in the first degree and plead guilty to murder in the second degree. District Attorney Pelletier approved of this course.

Conroy killed his wife Bridget at No. 541 East First street, South Boston, February 12. He was indicted by the Grand Jury at the March sitting. He was represented by Joseph P. Lyons.

Conroy weighs 200 pounds. On the night of the murder he had been drinking and quarreled with his wife. She left him soon after and went to church to attend devotions. On her return Conroy renewed his quarrel with her and literally beat her to death.

MELLEN STOCK BILL GOES TO STATE SENATE

President Charles S. Mellen's bill to validate the $121,000,000 capital stock of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad was formally filed in the State Senate to-day through Senator William Turtle of Pittsfield, chairman of the Committee on Railroads. Turtle's committee voted last Tuesday to report favorably on the measure, but the draft of the bill did not appear until to-day. No dissenters are recorded on the committee report, but it is understood that Representative Robert M. Washburn of Worcester reserves his right to dissent.

The main feature of the bill is that it allows the Railroad Commission, Tax Commissioner and Bank Commissioner, sitting jointly, to validate such stock and bonds as they find secured.

Washburn is expected to offer an amendment directing the joint commission to do nothing but investigate the road's financial and physical condition, report its findings to next year's Legislature and leave the matter of validating stocks and bonds to the Legislature.

The bill authorizes the commissioners to examine the assets and liabilities of the company for the purpose of ascertaining whether and to what extent the aggregate corporate assets are sufficient to secure its outstanding obligations.

Section 2 provides that the commission shall file certificate of its findings with the Secretary of State on or before the first day of January, 1911. Upon the filing of the certificate the capital stock and indebtedness is authorized to be such an amount not exceeding its present outstanding capital stock and indebtedness as the commission shall find to be warranted.

Section 3 provides that "the commission shall report to the General Court, recommend such legislation as to it shall seem wise for the future regulation of issues of capital stock and other obligations by railroad companies."

ROOSEVELT SPEECH MAY CAUSE REVOLT

CAIRO, Egypt, June 2.—Distinct uneasiness is felt here as the result of Theodore Roosevelt's attack on the Nationalists and the character of the Egyptians, in his London speech. It is known that the police have materially strengthened their positions, in expectation of demonstrations. Mr. Roosevelt is the object of a storm of denunciation from the Nationalists, uttered in the native press and by speakers.

Mass meetings have been held in several quarters of the city attacking him. The most radical of the Nationalists demand a concerted move now for a native Assembly and a constitution. Sheikh Youssef Ali, editor of the Elmoyad, the chief Moslem paper, condemns Roosevelt, expressing surprise that an American should hold such views as he professes. Dr. Nimr Dejen, another powerful editor, and Ali Bey Fahmy Kamel, also attack the ex-President severely.

BRITAIN FEARS SERIOUS RESULTS FROM ADDRESS

LONDON, June 2.—Grave fears for the results of Theodore Roosevelt's Guildhall speech on Egypt are felt by the Liberal leaders.

While it is reported in authoritative circles that the attack on the Government's policy to a certain extent pleased King George, whose sympathies are with the Conservatives, the effect of the ex-President's denunciation upon the Egyptian Nationalists is looked forward to with anxiety.

With Mr. Roosevelt already the object of the Nationalists' hatred because of his Cairo speech attacking them, further demonstrations are looked for by those familiar with the situation, especially in view of the fact that this speech was given at the moment when Mr. Roosevelt was being honored by London.

The comment to-day on the Guildhall speech is more [illegible] than that of yesterday. William T. Stead, editor of the English Review of Reviews, says:

"Since I tried to teach my grandmother how to suck eggs I have not seen anything quite like it. From the viewpoint of a circus it is absolutely beyond praise."

The Liberal leaders to-day expressed gratification that two prominent Americans, William R. Hearst and William J. Bryan, had expressed condemnation of the Roosevelt utterances.

Mr. Hearst's statement issued in Paris is given prominence in the London papers. The fact that Mr. Hearst calls Mr. Roosevelt "a tin soldier" and declares that, having "shocked and outraged" patriotic Americans, he should return to his own land, is the subject of much comment.

Mr. Bryan's milder strictures were delivered at a Y. M. C. A. meeting at Bradford.

The indications are to-day that while for the most part the attitude is to let Mr. Roosevelt's speech pass by, there may be a move to make the issues he has raised important in the next political campaign, now believed to be but a few months off. While the Conservatives may do this, astute politicians believe that the effect on the populace would not be that desired, the people as a whole not relishing outside criticism.

DAY OFF FOR CITY LABORERS

Because the city laborers receive no vacation, Mayor Fitzgerald will send to the City Council to-morrow an order requesting the Council to authorize a day off to all city employes, members of the Knights of Labor who wish to attend the annual picnic of the organization.

"It seems to me," says the Mayor, "only proper that they should be permitted to enjoy this brief respite from toil without being deprived of wages which most of them can ill afford to lose. It is the opinion of the Corporation Counsel that while the heads of departments cannot legally grant holidays without loss of pay, the City Council has the authority to do so.

"I recommend that your honorable body take such action as will authorize heads of departments to grant holidays without loss of pay under circumstances similar to those that have arisen in the Park Department."

SHOT DEAD BY MISTAKE.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., June 2.—Mistaken for a burglar, Elmer Frost, fifty-five, a leading resident of Orange County, was shot dead at Montgomery early to-day by the thirteen-year-old son of C. W. Teed.

POPE PIUS X. IS 75 TO-DAY

ROME, June 2.—Pope Pius X. is seventy-five years old to-day and is receiving the birthday congratulations of the world. At the Vatican to-day special services were said in honor of the day.

The Pope spent some time at prayer in his private chapel. Congratulatory messages were received from all over the world, the humble as well as Kings and Princes sending their well wishes. There were many callers at the Vatican.

SWEEPING RAILROAD WARFARE

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The United States Government is upon the verge of war against the railroads of even greater breadth and significance than its fight against the Standard Oil Company and the Tobacco Trust. It is understood that the injunction suit to prevent the Western trunk line committee from raising freight rates on the Western lines is but a test case, the Government having in preparation suits for the dissolution of every similar railroad body in the country.

Makes Triple Attack.

The department of justice is making a triple attack on the railroads. The first step is the injunction granted at Hannibal, Mo., restraining the roads from enforcing the increases. The second will be an equity suit for the dissolution of the trunk line committee. The third is a proceeding for contempt of court for violation of the injunction granted several years ago in the trans-Mississippi freight case. By far the most important is the dissolution suit.

The Government has already scored a victory over the roads, in that it has so manoeuvred the case that the burden of proof has fallen upon the defendants in the injunction suit. According to the officials of the Department of Justice the roads must prove that the injunction should be dissolved instead of the Government proving that it must be sustained.

Sherman Law Used.

The prosecution is in the hands of Frederick N. Judson, who appeared as special assistant attorney-general in the preliminaries of securing the injunction, and the dissolution fight, which is to be conducted in the same manner as the Oil and Tobacco Trust cases and the Harriman merger, will be left under his direction.

In the administration railroad bill there was a provision legalizing the making of agreements by the roads subject to the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission. This clause was stricken out. The Government is now proceeding under the Sherman anti-trust law to halt the alleged illegal rate making.

C. E. Fulton, agent for the railroads, has filed new tariff sheets with the Interstate Commerce Commission which will advance the rates on many commodities moving in carloads from Chicago and Indianapolis and points basing on these cities. The new rates will take effect July 1 and represent an advance from 6 to 31 per cent.

Telegrams were received by Wickersham from Western shipping interests asking that the injunction against the railroads be supplemented by another injunction in order that the action may contemplate a stay against advances in other rates which the association has made. Replies stated that it was now too late to file further proceedings and that the government's case would have to be based on the injunction filed before Judge Dyer.

CHARGE SECRECY IN RATE CASE WAS USED IN MARKET

WASHINGTON, June 2.—There is ugly talk in Washington regarding the manner in which the fact of the bringing of the injunction suits in Hannibal, Mo., by the Government against twenty-five railroads was used by certain powerful interests and individuals to take advantage of the stock market. No one, of course, knows how much they made out from the drop in railroad and other stocks. It is believed the profits amounted to hundreds of thousands of dollars, possibly millions.

Probability of a demand for congressional investigation was discussed to-day.

On Tuesday morning Attorney-General Wickersham made the following public statement to the press in referring to the request of a number of Missouri shippers that he take action to prevent twenty-five railroads from increasing freight rates commencing June 1:

"I do not think it will be necessary to take any action in this matter immediately, nor do I think it will be wise for the President to send any special message to Congress [illegible] on this matter, as was urged by the delegation of shippers whom I saw yesterday."

Wickersham openly admitted that as long ago as last Friday he had decided to institute injunction proceedings. Then at midnight on Saturday he sent Assistant Attorney-General [illegible] to St. Louis for the purpose of filing the papers.

The [illegible] lack of information gave ample opportunity to persons who were in a position to know what was going on behind the scenes to place heavy selling orders with brokerage houses, and be in a position to take advantage of the slump when the announcement of the suit became generally known and [illegible] immediate profit.

It is thought that the bad impression created by these circumstances may result in an investigation which will result in one of the most sensational scandals that has been known in Washington for years and rivalling the scandal created some years ago when a number of Senators were shown to take advantage of the stock market through information concerning the pending legislation which would affect sugar stocks [illegible].

KELIHER WITNESS TELLS OF SECRET OFFICE SCHEMES

Telegraph Wires That Did Not Extend Beyond Room Declared to Have Been Found In "Marshall & Co.'s" State Street Place.

A telegraph instrument with a wire that did not run out of the room, that might have been used for "fake" wire tapping, was found in Room 310 of No. 110 State street, which was occupied last December and the first of this year by Martin J. Walsh, the reputed head of the faro gang that is alleged to have caused the downfall of George W. Coleman, and his cronies.

CHARGE RACING GAME WAS WORKED HERE.

This was testified to to-day in the trial of "Big Bill" Keliher, who is accused of helping Coleman rob the bank. It was also declared by one witness that Keliher himself was seen in this room last January. Yesterday stationers printed for "John R. Marshall & Co." showed that this firm posed as managers of a Western Union Racing Department.

The government claims that the Marshall outfit, Walsh, Keliher and others had a fake telegraph outfit in this room just across the street from the Western Union office and in the same building as the Postal office, and that they laid for victims in connection with the races.

The janitor and an elevator boy of No. 110 State street, both identified pictures of Martin J. Walsh as those of the John R. Marshall who occupied room No. 301 in the building last December and January. It was the janitor, John J. McGreevy, who swore that he saw Keliher in the room.

The picture of James Stranscholder, now in New York on the charge of helping Coleman loot the bank, was introduced in evidence to-day. Daniel H. Coakley, of counsel for Keliher, remarked:

"That will help a lot."

Witnesses were asked if they had seen Stranscholder, showing them his picture, in the State street room, but no one could say that he had seen him.

Cashier Earl Accused.

One of the startling features of to-day's proceedings was the accusation by Lawyer Harvey H. Pratt of Keliher's counsel, that Frank L. Earl, cashier of the Cambridge National City Bank at the time Coleman was stealing its money, knew that Coleman was robbing the bank.

Judge Hale ruled that the cross-examination of Cashier Earl could not continue until that of Coleman was finished. Mr. Pratt wanted to proceed and in arguing his point declared that he was ready to prove that prior to the closing of the bank Cashier Earl, Bow Wow, a depositor, [illegible] and every cent he had there.

Mr. Pratt offered to prove that the attention of Cashier Earl was called in 1909 by a depositor named Leonard to Coleman's mode of life and to the number and means in which he was getting his money. Judge Hale ruled that this was a matter of defence and not of cross-examination, so Mr. Earl left the stand, but was ordered to remain in court, subject to recall to the witness stand.

Earl is sixty years of age, gray haired, and is so deaf that it was difficult for him to hear questions.

Say Walsh Is "Marshall."

Miss Mamie Hightower was recalled to the stand and questioned by Lawyer Daniel H. Coakley for the defence as to her property. She said that her $7,000 worth of real estate in Kansas City is in her father's name. The $2,800 which she has in the Franklin Trust Company in New York, Miss Hightower testified, was in her own name. She said she had earned this money.

George W. Brainard, a real estate agent, testified that he rented Room No. 301 of No. 110 State street last December to John R. Marshall. He said he saw Marshall several times and that he ceased to be a tenant there March 3, last. The two photographs of Martin J. Walsh, the head of the faro gang, which are in the case, were shown to Brainard and he at once recognized them as pictures of the John R. Marshall who rented the rooms from him.

The witness said that there was some telegraph wiring in the room that Marshall used.

Miss Hightower Again Present.

Miss Mamie Hightower was in her accustomed place in the courtroom. She glanced about, evidently searching for Coleman, but he was not present. Miss Hightower again sat beside Mrs. Walter Coleman, the mother of the convicted bank clerk. His father was also in court.

Mr. French asked to have put in evidence copies of the Old Farmers' Almanac for the years 1907, 1909 and 1910. It was expected that these were to be used to prove weather conditions, and the time of the sunset during the days when Coleman was making flying trips to New York with the bank's money in his pocket.

Cashier Frank L. Earl, of the National City Bank of Cambridge, was recalled for cross-examination by Attorney Harvey Pratt.

Q.—[illegible] at the bank at the [illegible] under the date of December 6, 1909, the first day mentioned in the indictment and ask you to tell me the names of the largest depositors there. Was the President, Mr. Dresser, one of them? A.—Yes, sir.

AMERICAN LEAGUE GROUNDS, St. Louis, June 2.—The Red Sox resembled a lot of wild colts when they got in the field to gambol with the Browns. They were so glad that the long jaunt to the Mound City was over, and it felt good to them to get out on the springy turf and exercise.

After what the Speed Boys did to the locals in Beantown the fans expected them to show some pennant ball, as great things had been heard about the way Donovan's warriors were making the other clubs travel.

Manager O'Connor's boys had been going so badly of late that the fans were feeling a bit sore at their showing, but were ready to give them every encouragement when they showed reasons of troubling the visitors.

Joe Wood, the fast youngster, was called to open the ball for the Red Sox, while Manager O'Connor thought he might spring some of his southpaw material to see how it worked.

SOUTH END GROUNDS, June 2.—The fans still had confidence that the Doves could take the measure of the Cubs, even if the Windy City bunch did hold the top perch in the race just now. The Doves trimmed them a couple of times right on their own stamping grounds and that was good enough to make the local home supporters believe that the Cubs were in for more beatings before they could get away.

The Cubs looked pretty classy and were never in better speeding form during the season, but the Doves were likely to roam them behind at any stage and give the Cubs a jolt they wouldn't forget.

Husk Chance, the fighting manager of the Cubs, had his string of pitchers take the wrinkles out of their arms as he planned to pick the best performer of the lot. Cole, the new recruit, looked pretty good, and it was a toss-up between him and Pfiester to shoulder the job.

The new bridegroom, Cliff Curtis, was about due to perform. His great pitching on the western trip created keen interest with the fans to see him fire the shoots.

16,100 UNION MEN RECEIVING HIGHER WAGES

Of 17,000 trades unionists in Greater Boston who were affected by the demand for higher wage scales to take effect on June 1, only 900 are on strike to-day. More than 200 men who went out received the new scales and returned to work.

Of the Carpenters' Union, numbering 6,000 men, 75 are on strike to-day and the probabilities are that all these men will be back on the job within 24 hours. The carpenters demanded an increase from 47¾ cents an hour to 50 cents.

Two hundred and twenty-five of the more than 5,000 members of the Building Laborers' Union in Greater Boston are striking. Seventy-five are of the English speaking union, while 125 are of the Italian speaking branch.

Dominick D'Alessandro of Elmira, N. Y., international president of the Building Laborers' Union, to-day said:

"There are but five large firms which haven't agreed to pay the higher wage scale. We are now negotiating, and I expect three of the firms to sign the scale in a day. This will leave only seventy-five of our men out of work by to-morrow night, and before the week is over I expect to see every one of our members at their places."

Of the 5,000 members of the Machinists' Union fewer than 600 struck. Seventy-five returned to work to-day. They went back to the Peerless Manufacturing Company, South Boston. Negotiations looking toward settlement with twelve firms are being conducted.

PILGRIMS WILL HAVE MORE FUN

The Pilgrim Publicity Association is going to hold another big field day this year. That fact will be great news to many. At the first meeting of the new board of directors this was one of the first things decided. H. B. Humphrey was re-elected chairman by the new directors. In addition to the decision to have another great field day, the board decided to hold meetings weekly at the Chamber of Commerce. They will meet on Tuesday mornings. Preliminary plans were made for the next field day. It will be like that held last June at Nantasket Beach, with the Rockland House as headquarters. The date has not been fixed. There will be all sorts of amusements—baseball games, other athletic sports and games, a minstrel show or some other theatrical performance. The advertising men themselves will provide the fun.

When last year's field day was held the association had 100 members. Now it has 300. Last year about 300 persons enjoyed the field day. This year 600 are expected to attend it.

BEAN ASSAILS LEGISLATURE

FITCHBURG, June 2.—Three hundred members of the Board of Trade and of the Merchants' Association, who attended a joint supper of the two bodies, are considering to-day the severe criticism which was given to the Legislature by Joseph W. Bean of the Haverhill Commission and head of the department of Public Safety and Charity of that city. Mr. Bean said the General Court obstructs the path of reform for Massachusetts cities and strangles home rule.

"Our cities are bound and gagged," he said, "and are being strangled by legislative interference. We are prevented from deciding matters which we ought to have the right to control. In many purely local matters Haverhill has to consult men from Worcester, Pittsfield, Cape Cod and Boston. Were it not for this fact Haverhill to-day would have a better charter—a home rule charter.

"I believe that the officials and public-spirited men of all the cities of the State should get together to the end that State and municipal affairs might be separated, and that the cities and their people may secure the right of self-government."

NOTED CRITIC OF GIRLS SUED AS FICKLE MAN

NEW YORK, June 2.—Suit for $50,000 damages for alleged breach of promise of marriage has been brought in the Supreme Court by Miss Esther Quinn against Professor Harry Thurston Peck, holder of the chair in Latin at Columbia University, president of the Latin Club of America, member of many prominent literary clubs and associations, magazine writer, critic of the fair sex and essayist on perfumes as related to morals.

The first wife of Professor Peck obtained a divorce in Sioux Falls, South Dakota, in September, 1908. The grounds were desertion. On August 26 of the following year he married Miss Elizabeth H. Du Bois, a teacher of classics in the Morris High School.

For Ten Years His Friend.

Miss Quinn in her complaint alleges that her friendship with the scholar-writer-critic began in June, 1900, when she was employed on a New York newspaper, and continued until February 3 last, when she heard for the first time of his marriage to Miss Du Bois.

In the same document Miss Quinn asserts, through her lawyer, Daniel O'Reilly, that in September, 1908—the month in which his first wife divorced him—Professor Peck proposed marriage to her and that she accepted him.

The Columbia professor is fifty-four years old. Miss Quinn is very much his junior. Through his attorneys, Tappan & Bennett, he has entered a general denial of the charges.

Offers Letters as Proof.

The young woman, after she severed her connection with the newspaper, was for a time on the staff of Smart Set, but she has now retired to live in a New England city.

Mr. O'Reilly, who asserts that no possible aspersion may be justly cast against his client, will offer in evidence on the trial of her cause more than a hundred letters written to her, she affirms, by the famous litterateur.

It is a remarkable collection of letters, with dates running from 1900 to 1909, crowded with tender phrases many of them, filled with expressions of adoration, declarations of unswerving devotion, sobriquets of endearment. A few bear in full a signature—"Harry Thurston Peck," one is signed "Thurston," many "Harry" and some simply "H." These signatures are preceded by "Affectionately," "Lovingly," "Your very own," "Always and always."

"Lovingly" and "Your very own" ruled as favorites.

These letters came sometimes on plain stationery, at other times on stationery marked with a monogram of the initials "H. T. P.," sometimes on note paper of the Century Club, or Columbia University, or of prominent hotels in Massachusetts, New Jersey or wherever else the writer may have been travelling at the time.

MELROSE SOCIETY BEAUTY IN QUEER MARRIAGE SUIT

MRS JOHN E ROCHFORD

STAGE BELLE TO FIGHT WEDDING

Mrs. Caroline Dill Rochford of Melrose, who before her marriage was Miss Caroline Brewster Dill, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse A. Dill, is preparing to try to prove to the courts that she was never really married to John Rochford of New York and Newport.

Mrs. Rochford was at one time prominent on the stage, where her professional name was Miss Caroline Brewster. Five years ago she became John Rochford's wife. Now she is seeking to have her marriage annulled. In her petition to the court she declares that Rev. Albert G. Bale, who performed the ceremony at what is still remembered in Melrose as one of that city's greatest social events, was not a citizen of Massachusetts, and hence could not legally perform the ceremony.

Mrs. Rochford, not yet thirty years of age, is as pretty as ever she was when a girl she was a prime favorite on the stage. She is a graceful brunette. Her father, Jesse A. Dill, is well known in Boston as a prominent caterer.

The petition for the annulment comes as a surprise to the residents of Melrose. The Rev. Mr. Bale was pastor of the Melrose Congregational Church for many years. The trial for the annulment of the marriage is to come up in the courts in July. Rev. Mr. Bale died some years ago.

MURRAY'S

The Best Gargle Ever Used

MURRAY'S LOTION is an ever ready gargle, always at hand to cure or prevent Sore Throat and Diphtheria. Unlike other gargles, it contains no alcohol, opiums or peroxide.

Murray's Lotion Cures Sore Throat in 24 Hours

The Murray Chemical Co.:
Gentlemen—My [illegible]-year-old son, Eugene, had an ulcerated sore throat for ten days, which greatly frightened us. We tried peroxide and four other supposed "cures," which did not help him.
A friend, who had used Murray's Lotion, told me about it, and I bought a bottle. Eugene used it as a gargle, and in three hours his throat was almost clear.
Thankfully yours,

BIG SHOE SHOP CENTRE AT SOUTH BOSTON ONE METHOD OF BOOMING

South Boston, in the opinion of Mr. M. F. Kelley of No. 40 Grove street, Milford, ought to be the world's greatest centre for the manufacture of shoes. Mr. Kelley speaks from experience in the business, and as a former resident of South Boston.

No other community in the world, Mr. Kelley maintains, can furnish the manufacturer with better workmen. None other is so happily situated as to rail and water.

What think other readers of the BOSTON AMERICAN? What do you think? How would you Boom South Boston?

The Kelley letter is as full of meat as a nut. How shall some practical good be gained from it? Who will be the first citizen to take earnest, aggressive and businesslike steps towards bringing a big shoe plant to South Boston? He will deserve the gratitude not only of South Boston residents and property-owners but of the manufacturer whose interest in South Boston he awakens.

What would be your own way of booming South Boston? The BOSTON AMERICAN, merely to flavor public interest in the question, is offering one hundred dollars in gold for answers. Fifty dollars will be paid for the best letter, twenty dollars for the second best, ten for the third best and five dollars each for the four next in merit.

Needn't Rob Other Cities.

Everybody interested in the South Boston "boom" will be glad to read Mr. Kelley's letter. He writes as follows:

BOOM SOUTH BOSTON,
BOSTON AMERICAN:

I have this to say, in regards to the boom of South Boston. It is up to the citizens and committee to get busy and turn South Boston into the greatest shoe manufacturing centre in the world. In so speaking, I don't mean that South Boston, or any other city or town, should offer flattering inducements to manufacturing concerns to leave their present town or city and locate in South Boston. I think every town or city needs all the industries it can get, and the whole thing of one town robbing another is wrong. What South Boston wants is new concerns, or those that are increasing their business and must have room.

Speaking from knowledge, gained from experience in the shoe business, I think South Boston could easily become the greatest shoe manufacturing centre in the world in a very few years. There is every advantage to be had. South Boston has the material and the labor. All that is needed is up-to-date factories with every advantage and convenience to manufacture shoes at a low cost. The place to manufacture an article is where everything that goes into that article can be obtained at the least expense.

It would take too much space to explain all the advantages to be gained to the shoe manufacturer, as well as to the tanners and leather dealers, if shoes were manufactured in South Boston in large quantities, but I venture to say that, with conditions as they now exist in regard to labor and material, shoes could be manufactured in South Boston at as low cost as in any other city or town in the United States.

Get thousands of people employed in South Boston; replace the old wooden dwelling houses in the oldest part of the peninsula with up-to-date flats, and the transportation problem, as well as others, will right themselves. First, get the factories and the houses for the employes. New and increasing concerns will wake up the fact that they cannot afford to manufacture shoes outside of South Boston.

It may be a case similar to the man, who, ninety-five years old, was setting out an orchard. Asked if he expected to "eat the fruit from those trees," he answered that he did not expect to eat the fruit from those trees, but that some one had planted the trees from which he already received fruit. Massachusetts, being the home of the shoe and leather industries, in time may be able to get back the business that went to other parts of the United States, simply because we were unable to supply the goods.

Respectfully yours,
(Signed) M. F. KELLEY.
Milford, Mass.

Value of First Impressions.

Mrs. F. F. Foley, of No. 111 Chelsea street, East Boston, is one of many letter-writers who suggested a more attractive "entrance" to South Boston. The recurrence of this point in so many letters may well suggest something to the South Boston commercial and improvement associations. Mrs. Foley is apparently one of many who believe that there is something in "first impressions." She writes briefly but interestingly:

BOOM SOUTH BOSTON,
BOSTON AMERICAN:

I am not a resident of the peninsula, but I visit there often, and I hope my suggestions may help the boom. In the first place the cars should be more commodious, and they ought to run more frequently. Use the Commonwealth docks for the fish industry. Repair and paint all buildings at the entrance, so that strangers will have a good impression. Compel the owners to tear down or put in order such old houses as may be a menace to public health and safety. If the people would appoint ten or more influential men, to form an improvement association, they could work together for the welfare of the district.

Respectfully,
(Signed) MRS. F. F. FOLEY.
111 Chelsea street, East Boston, Mass.

Contest Closes Soon.

The "Boom South Boston" contest is still open. A few days remain within which you may speak up.

How would you boom South Boston? Write a letter about it. Your name need not be printed if you make the request. This statement is made in order that no good suggestion shall be lost because of modesty on the part of the man or woman who has it in mind.

Suggestions will be passed upon by a representative committee, of which Mayor Fitzgerald has consented to serve as chairman.

South Boston needs new industries, better transportation facilities, apartment houses,—needs a commercial tonic. She needs to be better known, to Massachusetts, New England and the country—needs to be understood.

How shall these things be done for her? How would you Boom South Boston?

One way is to keep saying it, thinking it, believing it—Boom South Boston!

Write to "Boom South Boston," in care of the BOSTON AMERICAN.

WHY NOT?

Why not take advantage of opportunities such as lie before no other city?

Why shouldn't Boston's gateway boom and bloom like San Francisco's?

Why not get together, everybody?

BOOM SOUTH BOSTON!

Have you answered the question yet?

How would you boom South Boston?

Write a letter about it—to-day—now—to "Boom South Boston," care Boston American.

JUMP SAVES 2 IN AUTO CRASH

A jump in the very nick of time saved an unknown man and woman from death or serious injury when the touring car in which they were riding through Newbury street crashed into the wooden fence bordering the depressed tracks of the Boston & Albany on Newbury street near Charlesgate East, Back Bay. The machine was wrecked after it dropped to the tracks ten feet below.

According to witnesses of the accident the auto with the unknown man and woman was driven up Newbury street at a fair rate of speed. Near Charlesgate East its rear wheels skidded. The man, who was driving at the wheel was unable to control his brake. Shouting his warning to his companion, he jumped as the machine plunged headlong into the fence, a large section of which was torn away.

The woman landed in a heap against the fence off to one side, and was slightly bruised.

Witnesses say the man was quick to climb the bank, accost his lady companion and hurry off, refusing to tell their names to the police. The car is numbered Massachusetts 0342, and is the property of the Back Bay Automobile Exchange, No. 71 Chestnut street.

100 PER CENT PROFIT ON MILK IN BOSTON

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Senator Lodge has presented to the Senate a report from Secretary of Agriculture Wilson on the high cost of living. The investigation covers but a brief variety of food products, milk, butter, poultry and eggs.

Regarding milk, the report shows that consumers paid 8.2 cents per quart in Boston where the retailers paid the wholesalers 5.3 cents per quart, the producers receiving only 4 cents per quart. The difference between producer and consumer was more than 100 per cent. Consumers paid 7 cents per quart in Manchester, N. H., where the producers received 4.1 cents per quart. Philadelphia consumers were obliged to pay 9 cents per quart, although producers there received only 4.8 cents per quart.

BOSTON MIDDY WON ANNAPOLIS HONORS

Midshipman Augustine H. Gray, whose parents live at No. 39 Marlboro street, has secured distinctive honors at the Naval Academy by leading his company to victory in the annual color competition. By winning this competition the Fourth Company will carry the brigade and national colors for the coming year. Among those who witnessed the drill were Midshipman Gray's parents, Attorney and Mrs. Russell Gray.

DENEEN TO BE GRAFT WITNESS

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 2.—The announcement that Governor Deneen will be a witness before the grand jury to tell what he knows about graft and corruption in the Illinois Assembly, and more especially in connection with the use of money in bringing about the election of William Lorimer as United States senator, has brought out a startling state of affairs. It is known that an attempt will be made to show that a plot has been formed by the foes of Senator Lorimer to bring about his ruin.

With the trial of Lee O'Neil Brown on the charge of bribing Representative Charles A. White, set for Monday and the states attorneys of Cook and Sagamon counties working in harmony all interests centres at the State capital. Another bomb to-day was thrown into the Lorimer ranks when Representative A. M. Foster of Rushville arrived here. He says he will make a full statement telling what he knows of the election of Lorimer. He also said that he would tell some interesting details concerning the defeat of the Fish bill, which is now a subject of grand jury inquiry.

VAHEY DECLARES HE'LL RUN AGAIN

James H. Vahey will not withdraw in favor of anybody's candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, according to his own emphatic statement. Attorney Vahey declared himself still in the running, in a speech at the complimentary dinner given Representative William H. O'Brien at Young's Hotel by political and labor union friends. Attorney Vahey said he was heartsick of the scheming of certain men who are trying to control party organizations to gain personal ends, regardless of the will of the people.

NEW PACIFIC COAST ARTILLERY RECORD

SAN FRANCISCO, June 2.—A new Pacific coast record was made when the Sixty-fourth Company Coast Artillery corps fired four shots from Uncle Sam's huge twelve-inch disappearing guns, being tested for the first time at the Mandell battery, Fort Berry, and scored a clean hit each time, making a perfect score of 100.

PEARY PAID HIGH HONOR BY KING GEORGE

LONDON, June 2.—King George to-day paid unusual honors to Commander Robert E. Peary, discoverer of the North Pole, summoning him to Marlborough House for an audience.

The American took the occasion to wish England, through the crown, success in the hunt for the South Pole, for which the Scott expedition ship Terra Nova left London yesterday.

Commander Peary expressed his keen disappointment that the plans for a simultaneous American expedition had fallen through. The King also declared that the failure of the proposed race had caused him regret.

The scientist was taken to Marlborough House by Ambassador Reid. For more than half an hour Commander Peary remained with the King. Most of the time was taken up with a recital of the events of the North Pole hunt that ended successfully. The King exhibited great interest in the story of the Arctic dash. He seemed particularly pleased with the fact that a British subject, Captain Bartlett, had taken a prominent part in the expedition that finally conquered the farthest north.

"The North Pole may belong to the United States," he laughingly commented, "but if the Scott expedition reaches the South Pole it will be my own property."

BROOKLINE WOMAN WILLED $100,000

Mrs. Phoebe Palmer Edwards of Brookline is about to come into possession of a bequest of $100,000 in the distribution of the estate of her half brother, the late E. H. Phelps of Chicago. Miss Helen Daly of Boston is also remembered with the sum of $2,000. The entire estate is valued at $1,400,000.

CITY LIFE CANKERED BY WHIRL AND GRIND

I think the modern man gets everlastingly tired of the perpetual attempt to catch up. City life is cankered with the everlasting whirl and grind that begins nowhere and ends nowhere.

Business men are always trying to catch up with their work, and in this even judges are not exempt, for they are never up with their work; they are always trying to "catch up."

The country town is the reservoir of the best blood in the country. I am not in favor of the movement from the city to the country towns of rich men, for it means the acquirement by them of thousands of acres of land for estates. It is going to leave us, in the long run, like some of the rural districts of England instead of the old-fashioned country we find about New England.—Melvin O. Adams to East Bridgewater Board of Trade.

ORPHANS HAVE GALA DAY ON BIG FARM

Two hundred and thirty-five children of the St. Vincent Orphan Asylum enjoyed the fifth annual gala day on the country estate of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey D. Wheeler at Burlington. The little ones had the big farm all to themselves, so the day in the country was the best day in the year for them. Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler distributed presents all around and treated the children to a plenitude of things good to eat. Swings and hammocks were specially put up to accommodate the orphans. Games were played on the lawn and in the fields. Then there were more refreshments prior to the departure for home.

COURT REVERSES VERDICT FOR $5,599

A verdict of $5,599.53, secured by Fred S. Thorne of Gardiner, Me., against the Travelers' Insurance Company, was set aside in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. Thorne sued on an accident policy and the defence maintained that false statements had ben made in the application.

FIRE AND PANIC AFTER NEW YORK SUBWAY CRASH

NEW YORK, June 2.—Panic resulted from a rear-end collision of two southbound subway trains at Mott avenue in the Bronx branch. The rear car of the forward train caught fire at the impact and sent out such a volume of smoke that passengers at the next station north, four blocks away, were driven, choking, to the street. Passengers in the forward train, which was standing in the station when struck, were allowed to make their way to the fresh air by the regular station exits as soon as it was seen they were in no further danger. Those in the rear train were kept imprisoned for twenty minutes, until a northbound train could be halted beside them to effect a transfer. Then they were taken rapidly to the next station.

During this period of imprisonment the terror of many was pitiable, but to allow them to descend into the tunnel would have been to expose them to the third rail and the danger of being run down by other trains.

Nobody was badly hurt, though there were bruises for those thrown from their seats when the shock came, but neighboring drug stores were kept busy reviving unconscious women and half-choked men.

The accident demonstrates anew what would be the horrors of a serious collision followed by a fire.

Thus far there have been but two collisions in the subway, of which the first occurred some years ago, during a strike.

The only person badly injured was a guard. The police say they carried out 200 persons either unconscious or half-fainting from the smoke.

VOCATION EDUCATION IS URGED BY BISHOP

Education must be vocational. Life with its interests depends upon it. Here, then, is the great duty of our schools and a great problem of the master. He must discover in the student his vocation and then bring to him the training for the calling. When will our schools complete this part of the function? Bishop John W. Hamilton at Boston University commencement exercises.

POLICE SEEK LYNN BOY, LONG MISSING

The police of various cities and towns have been asked to try to locate the whereabouts of little George Callas, who disappeared from his home at No. 53 Pleasant street, Lynn. He told James and Jennie Callas, his brother and sister, that he had been suspended for a short time at the factory where he was working, but an investigation shows that his foreman merely reprimanded him. He is about five feet two inches in height, weighs about 120 pounds and was dressed in a gray suit and cap.

DECLARE COURTS FAR BEHIND TIMES

NEW YORK, June 2.—The system under which the law is administered in this country is 100 years behind the age, the procedure in equity cases is a scandal to our jurisprudence, many cases are decided not on their merits, but purely on technical questions, and not only must something be done about it, but something will be done about it, is the substance of a statement given out by a joint committee of the National Bar Association and the National Civic Federation at the conclusion of a conference held at the invitation of ex-Judge Alton B. Parker.

REAL RUSEAU IS RIGHT HERE, SAYS ALMY

Ferdinand P. Almy, in charge of the affairs of William C. Russell of Melrose, who successfully fought the claim of "Dakota Dan" Russell to be declared his long lost brother, to-day branded the story that James D. Ruseau has been found and will be brought to Boston, as "hot air."

Ruseau, the William C. Russell people have always contended, is the right name of "Dakota Dan." The rumor has gained ground that the lawyers for the Dakota claimant have found the real Ruseau in New York and will produce him when the famous case is reopened. It was believed that Ruseau was dead, but it could not be proved. The mother and relatives of Ruseau declared at the trial that Dakota Dan was their son and brother, James D. Ruseau, but this the claimant denied.

"The real James D. Ruseau," said Mr. Almy to-day, "is right here in Melrose. He is 'Dakota Dan.'"

Attorney Simpson today declined to admit that he had found "Jim" Ruseau, but promised a new sensation when Dakota Dan's appeal is tried. He would only say that he is keeping all his ammunition for the trial before the Supreme Court.

"In the East Cambridge trial," said Senator Simpson, "the other side was fortified by stories we gave to the newspapers. Therefore I am keeping mum in preparation for the trial of our appeal. However, I will say this—I challenge William C. Russell's attorneys to produce Fresno Dan, the accepted claimant, on the witness stand. If they put him on the stand there will be something doing from yours truly."

The discovery of the real James D. Ruseau—if he has been found—is of the greatest importance to Dakota Dan's side in the will case. The claim by attorneys for William C. Russell, the Melrose recluse, upon whose identification of his brother depended the division of the Russell estate, worth half a million dollars, that the North Dakota claimant was really James D. Ruseau, a French Canadian from northern New York, created a sensation at the trial. This was intensified when the white haired mother of Ruseau, with his sisters, appeared at the trial and swore that Dakota Dan was none other than Jim Ruseau.

COATLESS WORKMEN IN FUNERAL MARCH

WEEHAWKEN, N. J., June 2.—Hugh McCall had been employed for ten years at the drydock of Pletjen & Lange and was much liked by his fellow workmen because of the many kindnesses to them.

McCall, who was thirty-five years old, fell from a scaffold and was killed. His funeral took place just at the busiest hour of the day. Notwithstanding this, 112 workmen, machinists and boilermakers, stopped their work and went to the funeral. Not one of them wore a coat, but paid their last respects in the garb with which McCall was most familiar.

At the head of this line of workmen, which followed the carriage containing the man's family, were the two employers of the man. They marched a mile and a half, and the sight was one of the most impressive Weehawken has witnessed for some time.

BABY DIES OF THREE FATAL AILMENTS

NEW YORK, June 2.—A fractured skull, measles and bronchial pneumonia combined to bring ten-months-old Gertrude Renner to her death; she lived ten days after her skull was fractured. Alice tried to carry her baby brother to a bed, but when crossing the room she stumbled and fell and Gertrude's head struck a table.

The doctors at the New York Hospital were unable to determine whether the baby was seriously hurt. They warned the mother that if the child developed certain symptoms she must bring the baby back. These symptoms did not appear, but measles did. Dr. Cunningham found that Gertrude not only had measles, but bronchial pneumonia and a fractured skull. Owing the condition of the baby the doctor could not operate.

CALL BOSTON MEN AS FRAUD WITNESSES

PHILADELPHIA, June 2.—Although alleged to be wanted in a number of other cities on charges of using the mails to defraud in connection with green goods and gold brick swindles, George W. Post and Emil A. Starkloff of Wynnewood will be tried here on a similar charge.

Among their victims, it is alleged, were several wealthy Englishmen. One of these, Kenneth W. Lee, it is charged, came to this country at the invitation of the defendants and was shown at Boston a gold brick, which he was told came from the mine in which his family held an interest, and he advanced $25,000 to develop the claim.

Among the witnesses summoned are Frederick J. Hemings, a chemist, and Frederick A. Preston, an attorney, both of Boston.

AUCTION GOLD MINE FOR SUM OF $45,200

NEW YORK, June 2.—A gold mine was knocked down at auction on Broadway, a regular, legitimate gold mine—the Montezuma of Costa Rica. It brought $45,200 after some rather tame bidding. The company controlling the property went into bankruptcy recently, and it was sold to pay the claims. Lindsay Russell, the bankruptcy trustee, auctioned it off. He announced that disinterested appraisers has fixed the mine's value at $61,000 and it would not be sold for less than 75 per cent. of that. Bancroft Smith, said to represent James W. Johnson of New Brunswick, N. J., one of the creditors, started the bidding at $25,000 and ran it up to the figure it finally brought.

SENATE PASSES MILK REGULATION

CLASH OF N. Y. AND BOSTON BROKER TEAMS

All arrangements have been completed for the reception and entertainment of the New York Curb Brokers, who are expected to arrive in the Hub on Saturday next, where they will play their annual game with the Boston Curb Brokers at the American League park.

Great interest is being manifested in this coming game in view of the fact that both teams have scored a victory apiece in the past two years, and as this is a rubber game and a handsome pennant has been offered by E. S. Mendels, the dean of the New York Curb, the contestants are eager for the fray.

Manager George A. Stell, Jr., of the local team, has his men in first-class shape, and agrees that the New York contingent is due to taste a bitter defeat. Fifteen thousand tickets have been issued for the game, and the manner in which they have been sought indicates an exceptionally large attendance. A band of fifty pieces led by Mon O'Shea of this city will enliven the Boston rooters to bring home a victory for the local brokers.

After the game, a banquet will be held at the new home of the Boston Lodge of Elks on Somerset street, where both teams will be feted, and entertained by footlight artists well-known in the vaudeville world. Heavy wagers have been made with the Boston team a slight favorite, but before time shall be called, even money will be the bid and asked.

"POPS" SEASON HALF DONE.

Conductor Manners begins the last half of the "Pops" tonight with a program of more than ordinary attraction. One of the features of it will be a new march which he has written, which he calls "Teddy's Return." The soloist of the evening will be Mr. Arthur Brooke, flutist.

JOHN HAYNES HOLMES'S EULOGY OF HIBBARD

We think of the story of the two years of Mr. Hibbard's service as Mayor of the city of Boston, the splendid fight he put up against all the humiliation that swooped down upon him at the close of his term, the disgrace forced upon him by the people of the city he had given his life to serve, the heartbreak that went with the experiences of these last few months. When Mrs. Hibbard clasped this shattered body to her bosom, her eyes weeping, her spirit shaken, her heart beat all the more quickly because she saw that many of the wounds of which he was dying were in his back. He had been stabbed from behind by those he thought were his friends.—From sermon of Rev. John Haynes Holmes at Mayor Hibbard's funeral.

BENEFIT FOR DEAD LABOR MAN'S FAMILY

The friends of the late Fred J. Reardon, past president of Electrical Workers' Union No. 103, will assemble at the Shawmut Boat Club to-night, to attend the benefit which had been arranged prior to the death of the labor leader. A host of volunteers have been working for weeks to make the benefit a success, and both in organized labor and outside, the response to the call for aid has been unusually widespread. The widow and her children will be beneficiaries, and it is expected that a large attendance will make the event a gratifying one to those who have worked most zealously for it.

SHAFT WHIRLS MACHINIST.

Frank Taylor, a machinist, while at work repairing machinery at the Home Laundry in West Somerville was caught by a revolving belt, and before the eyes of a score of women was whirled around the shaft of the machine fifteen times. When finally he dropped to the floor he was bruised and in an unconscious condition.

ROOSEVELT TO AID DENTISTS

Dr. William H. Potter, a dentist at No. 19 Arlington street, who is president of the Dental Hygiene Council of America, has received a copy of the Strassburg (Germany) Post containing an account of Colonel Roosevelt's visit to the dental clinics in that city and Stockholm, Sweden. According to the article, the former President is much interested in the crusade for educating the general public to take care of the teeth and the mouth, and he will join in this work when he comes back to America.

In Stockholm Mr. Roosevelt inspected the annual dental clinic and spent much time upon the teachings of the director. At Strassburg he visited a similar institution, exhibiting great interest in the work of the International Dental Commission. He promised the leaders to take steps, on his return to America, for the formation of a national society on similar lines.

ACTRESS ENDS LIFE WITH GAS

NEW YORK, June 2.—Mystery surrounds the suicide by gas early to-day of Margaret Owens, eighteen years old, a beautiful actress, in the apartment of her sister at No. 208 East Seventeenth street, where she was visiting. Mrs. Myrtle Gruenberg, the sister, and Jaques Gruenberg, her husband, started out at midnight for supper at a restaurant in the neighborhood, Miss Owens said she was not feeling well and would retire.

When the Gruenbergs returned they found their apartment filled with gas and traced it to Miss Owens's room. The door was locked and Gruenberg broke a panel of glass. His sister-in-law was lying on the bed fully dressed and dead.

Gas had been pouring from two jets, that the windows were all tightly closed, and that the door leading into the hallway had been stuffed with towels and pillows.

The girl is said to be a daughter of a prominent official of the Lehigh Valley Railroad living in Buffalo.

AUTO INJURES CYCLING BOY

While riding a bicycle, Kenneth Howard, fifteen, of No. 605 Massachusetts avenue, Arlington, was struck and thrown twenty feet by an automobile driven by George D. Hayward, a Harvard "Gold Coaster." Howard was injured internally besides having a leg fractured in the collision. It was stated by witnesses that Howard rode his bicycle around the corner from Whittemore street directly into the auto, which contained five other Harvard students beside Hayward. The latter gave the injured lad all the assistance he could.

HODGE IS NOW "MAN AT HOME"

William Hodge, the actor, has selected the South Shore for a Summer home, following a lead set years ago by the Hanlon brothers, who have Summer places at Cohasset. Mr. Hodge paid a visit to Cohasset and the lower South Shore some months ago and saw the Alexander Williams estate, "Beechwoods," between Cohasset and North Scituate. He was so taken with the beauties of the place and its surroundings that he immediately took a lease of it.

He is now occupying it, motoring down after his nightly performance at the Park, arriving a little after midnight. It gives him his days at the shore, and he has expressed himself as much pleased.

"Beechwoods" was built several years ago by the late Alexander Williams and it is one of the show places of the South Shore. It is of cement construction, the house having upwards of thirty rooms, and surrounded with fine lawns sloping to the Gulf River. With the place goes a fine farm. The view from the house is unexcelled, affording views out over Cohasset Harbor and along Gulf River into Scituate. It is about a mile from Cohasset village. Since the death of Mr. Williams four years ago, the estate has been leased each season.

Beattie, officiating, assisted by the curate, and by Rev. Dr. Gilbert, formerly vicar of Trinity Chapel, New York. The ball-bearers were Edwin C. Post, Rear Admiral French E. Chadwick, Commander Frank Marble, Henry A. C. Taylor, Harford Hare Powell, Henry Redmond and Rear Admiral Charles S. Sperry.

Many Cases of Paralysis Are Curable

There are still people who say that no form of partial paralysis can be cured. If you have partial paralysis or some other severe nervous disorder, do you think it is better to be treated by someone who insists that you are incurable or to take a treatment that hundreds of grateful patients testify cured them.

The tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, by building up the blood so that it can nourish and strengthen the weakened nervous system, has made hundreds of cures in the most severe nervous disorders. This record of cures should merit a trial for the remedy which is guaranteed free from opiates and is entirely harmless.

Hands and Feet Seemed Dead.

The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in severe nervous diseases is convincingly shown by the case of Fr. Olave F. Dallimore, of No. 38 Nassau street, New York City, who says:

"A few years ago I was afflicted with paralysis and was in bed for nearly two months. I first felt the symptoms of the disease when I experienced difficulty in going up-stairs through my legs failing to support me. I consulted a physician, who said I had every symptom of locomotor ataxia, but as the disease developed he pronounced it Landry's paralysis and advised me to start for my home. I gave up my work and went to London, Ontario, Canada. A well-known physician was called in attendance, but I rapidly grew worse. A week later several physicians held a consultation on my case and told me that I was at death's door and had but three to six days to live. Yet I lingered on, by this time completely paralyzed. My hands and feet were dead, I could hardly whisper my wants and could swallow only liquids. The misery of my life was beyond description and I would have welcomed death.

"A clergyman, who visited me, as he supposed, in my last hours, told me of the marvelous cures of paralysis by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I started to take the pills. This was about a month after my sickness began, and in a comparatively short time I felt an improvement in my condition. There began to be a warm, tingling sensation in my limbs, which had been entirely dead, and I could move my hands and feet a little. The improvement continued and in a few weeks I was taken out of bed for a drive and drove the horse myself. After a while I was able to walk up-stairs alone and made a visit to Niagara Falls. Slowly but surely I regained my health and strength and left London for New York City to begin my work again. In eight months I was cured of paralysis.

"To this day I attribute my recovery to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and it gives me great pleasure to have a statement of my case published."

Was Helpless for Three Years.

Miss Theresa E. White, of Whitefield, Coos Co., N. H., was cured of locomotor ataxia by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills after doctors said nothing could help her. For fourteen years she has had no return of her trouble, so that her claim of a cure can be credited. She says:

"The disease began with severe pains in my limbs and progressed until my limbs became paralyzed. They were badly swollen, perfectly colorless and there was no sensation in them whatever. I could not move my feet and had to be helped around.

"The doctor said I had locomotor ataxia and that I would never be able to walk again. I kept growing more helpless and in the fall was sent to a specialist in Boston, who confirmed the diagnosis of our home doctor. I suffered terribly under his treatment, grew steadily worse and came back home. My hands and arms were weak. I couldn't turn my head and my eyes were affected by the disease. When I was raised to my feet I swayed from side to side and would fall down. I had no control over my limbs at all.

"The doctor said there was nothing on earth that could cure me. My people had seen Dr. Williams' Pink Pills recommended very highly in the papers and wanted me to try them, as the doctors had said I was incurable. It was some time before I could see that the pills were doing me any good, but my mother urged me to keep on with the treatment. I took the pills strictly according to directions until all the symptoms of the disease disappeared completely. Then I began to have a strange feeling in my limbs and felt as though I could walk. I tried it and was soon able to lift my feet from the floor and walk. I remember one day shortly after when our minister came to see me how amazed he was to have me meet him at the door. So it was that after three years of helplessness I was again able to walk. I used the pills for some time after I was perfectly well and have been in good health since."

BUTTERMILK FOR OLD PEOPLE

Ferments Contained in It Now Preserved in Concentrated Form Called

LACTABS

Take Them When Age Begins to Bring on

Tired Feeling
Headaches
Dyspepsia and the Like

In youth, nature provides for excesses, but there comes a time when the body cannot overcome indulgences. Then old age comes on apace. We begin to feel tired, have headaches, dyspepsia and the like. Buttermilk in itself does not prolong life—but it contains the desirable bacteria which counteract the germs which give rise to the poisons which strain the liver, kidneys, heart and skin. Therefore, it is not the buttermilk itself which is particularly desirable, but the ferments contained therein. The Paris Pasteur Institute has carefully investigated the sour milk foods used by Bulgarians, and their long and healthy lives are now attributed to the use of buttermilk made with a special milk ferment, which is now commercially prepared under the name of "LACTABS." A healthy, vigorous life may be extended by the regular use of Lactabs. They relieve tired feeling, headaches and dyspepsia.

Lactabs are palatable, tasting somewhat like a nice milk biscuit.

MAN ASTOUNDS OTHER SEX BY GAUDY COLORS

Let the women live out the flickering flame of their existence as magnates of the "butterfly life" trust monopoly, for their days are numbered and the evolution of the emancipated man has begun.

Dear Old Dame Nature will even have to sit up nights weaving new shades from moonbeams and star glints if she wants to paint her butterflies in hues that will surpass in glory the raiment of man.

GARMENTURE OF BUSINESS MEN SHOWING LATEST CUT.

Part of the new color scheme of the emancipated man has arrived here. You can see it in the haberdashers' windows though it isn't safe to look at some of them now without the protection of smoked glasses.

To Blur the Vision.

But the blazonry of colors is to come. They will astound, and even blur the vision. What Boston sees now is but as the darkling shades of a suppressed sunset as compared with a noonday on a bleached desert.

This trouble for women is starting at the clothing and drapery exhibit in Agricultural Hall in London. All the world of men modistes are there: "tailor" is too sombre a name to any longer describe those who will mould the appearance of men in the glorious tints of new weaves that men will wear.

It all started over the Chantecler craze which women seized as excuse for extravagance in costume and color that never had been dreamed of before.

And after the women, the men.

Diffused light and scintillating blazes of rainbow tints enter into every piece of apparel for man. Pajamas that outshine the best efforts of Fourth of July fireworks, and phantasies in bath robes that would make a bird of paradise feel shabby as an English sparrow by comparison. And kimono effects in lounging garments for men that outdo all the color schemes of the Japanese Imperial court.

A POPULAR GENTS AFTERNOON STREET COSTUME.

But when he doffs that he no longer creeps into garments of neutral hues to hurry unnoticed along the streets to business.

Peacock Blue Ties.

The new garmenture for emancipated man provides canary waistcoats that are a supreme effort in yellow. His ties run through all the glories of purple, old gold and peacock blue.

Emancipated man no longer wears sox. They have arrived at the eminence of hosiery with strength of hues to maintain the dignity of the new name. Shirt designs show the same dawn and sunset flashes.

Fancy vests run through the gamut of all the colors any woman ever dared to wear, and some that the fair sex never had the temerity to tackle. They run from brilliant green to plum, salmon, pink and tawney port.

His other garments are in keeping. Suit patterns all bear the mark of the impressionist school of art.

New raiment for men is on the way, and women must be content with the softer tones if they still desire to appear in contrast to the emancipated man.

FIREMAN SAVES SLEEPING BOY

Francis Hughes, the four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hughes, of No. 41½ Joseph street, Somerville, had a narrow escape from being suffocated during a fire in his home early to-day. He owes his life to the bravery of Captain Henry Turner of the Somerville fire department.

The house is a two-and-a-half story wooden dwelling. The Hughes family occupy the upper portion of the house. Francis was fast asleep in a room in the attic when fire was discovered in a heap of rubbish in the cellar. Dense volumes of smoke rolled up through the building, driving the inmates to the street. The boy was forgotten in the rush for safety and it was not until all had left the building that he was missed.

Several men made efforts to reach the boy, but the dense smoke drove them back into the street each time. Then Captain Turner groped his way up the stairs through the suffocating smoke. He found the boy fast asleep, with the smoke so thick in the room he could hardly breathe.

GALLIVAN HIT BY RICKARDS

Chairman Sullivan of the Finance Commission has received a letter from B. R. Rickards of Columbus, Ohio, editor of the American Journal of Public Hygiene, and former director of the bacteriological laboratory of the Boston Board of Health, in which Mr. Rickards denies that much of the time of the bacteriologists in the Boston laboratory was devoted to magazine work. Editor Rickards refers to statements made by former Chemist Frank Gallivan of the Board of Health against Chairman Durgin and Milk Inspector Jordan. Editor Rickards writes:

"The magazine referred to is the American Journal of Public Hygiene. The laboratory address was used as a mailing address and all editorial work was religiously done outside of office hours. Mr. Gallivan's statement that 'much' of the time of the bacteriologists was taken up in this work is thus unqualifiedly false."

TOURISTS NOW FEAR ARREST

Passengers on the Ivernia which arrived to-day reported regular Summer weather all the way with dancing and games on deck.

A larger amount of custom duty was collected from the Ivernia than has ever been the case in this port from a ship with the same number of passengers. The custom officials after a careful search, reported that the recent seizures in this port and New York have taught a lesson to passengers on transatlantic steamers. To-day the passengers freely declared their baggage, some even declaring more than they were obliged to and rebates had to be made. One passenger paid $1,800 duty.

Among the Boston passengers were Mr. and Mrs. Alanson Bigelow, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Bartlett, Mrs. [illegible] and her daughters Alice and Dorothy and sons Thomas and Hugh; Philip S. Sears and family; Charles and John Fox, and Madame Alice Esty, a grand opera star who has been singing with success in England.

CASHIER EARL ACCUSED BY KELIHER'S ATTORNEY

for December 6, 1909. What was his balance? A.—$39,068.31.

A.—And Mr. Kennedy's? A.—$71.83.

Q.—What was Mr. Kennedy's balance on December 7? A.—$11,071.83.

Q.—And the 11th? A.—$11,071.83.

Q.—Can you show where he made the deposit? A.—No.

Q.—Then that was an arbitrary list of the figures by the bookkeeper? A.—Yes, sir.

Earl also named the balance of the city of Cambridge, $6,027.30, December 6, 1909.

Q.—What was the balance of Mrs. L. Averhill's account on February 21? A.—She had no balance.

Q.—Then by the arbitrary work of the bookkeeper her balance had been wiped out? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—On February 16, 1909, or before, what do you find the balance to be of Kate P. Andrews? A.—On February 2, $5,000.

Q.—What was the next one? A.—February 7, $9,000.

Woman's $9,000 Wiped Out.

Q.—Does it appear that she took out her money? A.—No, sir.

Q.—What was her balance when the bank closed? A.—Her name had been stricken from the list.

Q.—By an act of the bookkeeper she was deprived of her money? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—On any days did you look at the customer's ledger to see who was drawing in February, 1910? (The witness did not answer.)

Q.—Were you a depositor? A.—Yes, sir.

Upon Judge Hale's interruption, Attorney Pratt said: "We propose to show that this witness knew what was going on in that bank and that he also knew that Coleman was pilfering the bank, and I think I have the right to ask him to look through the books of the bank and show what the deposits were."

Judge Hale said: "I will have the witness in court and you may call him as your witness later. I'll see that you do not suffer."

Q.—Was it one of the duties of the bookkeeper to report overdrafts to you as cashier? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did he ever report any overdraft of your own personal account at any time? A.—No.

Q.—Did you know from August 6, 1906, to September 12, 1906, that your personal account at the bank was overdrawn? A.—No.

Q.—Will you now say that from August 6, 1906, to September 12, 1906, your personal account was not overdrawn? A.—Not to my knowledge.

"Drew Out Every Cent."

Q.—Will you now say that you had a personal account in the bank in February, 1910? A.—Attorney French objected on the ground that Mr. Pratt had no right to go into the witness's personal affairs. The court excluded the question.

Attorney Pratt then said: "I wish to make an offer of proofs at this time, Your Honor. I offer to prove that prior to the closing of the bank, the witness, Mr. Earl, drew out every cent that he had on deposit in the bank."

Judge Hale said: "I've already ruled on the question."

Q.—Do you know a man named Lombard who was a depositor? A.—Yes.

Q.—In 1909 did you have a talk with Mr. Lombard? (excluded).

Cashier Earl made a cool witness. His face showed little emotion. He is sixty years old, with white hair. His face is smooth-shaven and he wears glasses. He is deaf.

Miss Hightower Recalled.

Miss Mamie Hightower was recalled for further cross-examination by Attorney Coakley.

Q.—Is the property in Kansas City left you by your friend, Mr. Holmes, in your own name? A.—In my father's name.

Q.—The money you have in the bank is in your own name, is it? A.—Yes, that's in my own name.

Q.—And this is the money that you have said that you earned. A.—Yes.

Q.—And it amounts to about $3,000? A.—I should say about $2,800.

Q.—You have said that this is deposited with the Franklin Trust Company? A.—Yes.

John F. Moore, contract agent for the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company, identified a request for a removal of a telephone from No. 6 Beacon street to No. 20 Huntington avenue. The request bore the date of December 27, 1909, and was signed by John R. Marshall. Another contract signed by John R. Marshall was identified by the witness as an order for an extension of the telephone at No. 20 Huntington avenue.

"Coleman's Mode of Life."

"I offer to prove," said Mr. Pratt, "that the attention of Earl was called by Lombard during 1909 to Coleman's mode of life and to the manner and means in which he was getting his money."

Q.—In 1909 did a police officer in Cambridge come to the bank and talk to you about Coleman's mode of life? (Excluded).

Q.—Did you write a letter in 1909 to a depositor of the bank named Lombard concerning Coleman and his mode of life in which you made reference to an investigation of Coleman's method of getting money? (Excluded).

As the witness left the stand Judge Hale ordered that he be kept in court, subject to recall by the defense.

George W. Brainard, residing at No. 84 Evans street, Dorchester, and employed by Bradley & Tyson, of No. 60 State street, told of renting a room at No. 110 State street to John R. Marshall. He left March 3, 1910.

Two photographs were then presented to the witness.

Q.—Do you recognize from these photographs anybody with whom you had business dealings in the letting of that State street room? A.—Yes. I recognize the man purporting to be John R. Marshall, who hired the room from me.

"These originals have already been identified as Martin Walsh," said District Attorney French.

"Let me have a look at those photos," said Judge Hale. They were passed to him, and adjusting his glasses, Judge Hale studied them for some few minutes.

Q.—Did you go into this room after it was vacated? A.—Yes.

Q.—What did you see? A.—Three ordinary tables, some chairs, a few screens about seven feet high, a telephone booth and some wiring.

Identifies Walsh Pictures.

Q.—What kind of wiring was it? A.—It was wiring attached to a telegraph instrument.

John J. McCreevy, the janitor, identified the two photographs of Martin Walsh as like the man who represented himself as Marshall.

Q.—Now, do you remember ever having a conversation with a man in connection with some kind of a screen or curtain on the door? A.—Yes, sir, early in January.

Q.—How did you happen to go there? A.—The window in the door did not let the light come into the corridor, which was against the rules of the building, and I knocked on the door to see about it.

Q.—What happened? A.—A man came out and asked me what I was interfering with his business for.

Q.—Have you seen that man since or do you see him now? A.—Yes, sir. He is that large man there, pointing towards the defendant.

Threateeed By Big Man.

Judge Hale asked. "Mr. Keliher."

"I don't know just what his name is," said the witness.

Q.—Now tell me what the conversation was? A.—This man said he was going to make it so hot for me that I would have to get out in two weeks; that he would put a hornet's nest around me.

Q.—After Marshall left the premises did you find an apparatus like this there? A.—Yes. (The witness was shown some telegraph instruments.)

Q.—Was that office near the Western Union Telegraph office? A.—Yes, sir; across the street.

Q.—Was it near the Postal? A.—Yes, sir; in the same building.

Q.—Did you see any wires from this instrument running out doors? A.—No, sir, I did not.

The witness was cross-examined.

Q.—The man who talked to you in that office was impudent, wasn't he? A.—Yes.

Six Feet Tall, Weighed 200.

Q.—How big was he? A.—He was a large man, about six feet tall, weighing about 200.

Q.—Was he bald? A.—I don't know whether he was or not. No, he wasn't.

Q.—Was there any gray in his hair? A.—I do not remember.

Q.—When did you see Keliher? A.—Yesterday.

Turning to Mr. French, Mr. Coakley said: "Have you the picture of the man who was identified as Strausneider? I would like to show it to the witness and ask him if it was one of four that was shown to him." Mr. French handed the picture to Mr. Coakley, who showed it to the witness and asked.

Q.—Was that picture shown to you? A.—I think it was.

Q.—Was that one also shown to you? (The witness was handed another picture.) A.—Yes.

Q.—That makes two pictures. Now were you shown two more pictures? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you recognize either of the other two pictures? A.—Yes. I recognized one as being Mr. Keliher, but I did not know him by name at that time.

Q.—Where is the picture that you thought was the picture of the man Keliher? A. ("Here it is," said Mr. French, handing Coakley a picture.)

Q.—Is that the picture? A.—Yes, sir. (The answer was made this time by the witness.)

Asked to Identify.

Q.—Before you saw the picture were you asked to describe the man with whom you had the conversation at No. 110 State street in January? A.—No. I was asked if I could identify the man if I saw him.

Q.—I show you exhibit No. 95, a picture which my friend has not yet offered as an exhibit. Was it shown to you?

Mr. French jumped to his feet and said that he offered it now.

The picture was one of Strausneider and Mr. French asked that it be shown to the jury at this point. Mr. Coakley handed it to the jurors.

Q.—Was that one of the pictures which Mr. Adams shows you the first day. A.—I saw that picture, but I don't think he had it that day.

Q.—I hand you exhibit 79, which has been identified as a picture of "Jack" Leonard. Did Mr. Adams show you that picture on the first day? A.—Yes or one like it.

Q.—On that first day did he show you a picture of Keliher? A.—Yes.

Q.—What kind of a picture was it? A.—It looked like a picture clipped out of the paper.

To Get Adams's Address.

Attorney Coakley then asked for Mr. Adams's full name and present address and Mr. French agreed to give them.

Q.—When was it that you saw the other pictures after the first time? A.—Two or three days later.

Q.—When was it that you recognized in a picture shown you that it was Keliher who was the man that you had a row with down at No. 110 State street? A.—It was when I was in the district attorney's office, and about a week ago.

Q.—And up to this time, that is, a week ago, the time you came into the district attorney's office, had you ever recognized in any picture the man you had the row with down? A.—I never had.

Franklin R. Gifford, a bookkeeper for Bradley and Dyson, State street real estate agents, was the next witness. This firm has charge of the building at No. 110 State street.

Q.—Were you in the office of your firm when the letter of March 4 was written and in which John R. Marshall terminated the rent of a room at No. 110 State street? A.—Yes.

Q.—Was the letter written in your presence? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you ever before see the person who wrote that letter? A.—Never before.

Q.—Can you recognize in the defendant here, William J. Keliher, the person who wrote that letter? A.—I cannot.

Q.—Did you ever hear the name "Erkley"? A.—I never did till I saw it attached to this letter.

Comparison of Writing.

District Attorney French passed the letter to the jurors and said:

"I call your attention, and I shall need to later on in this trial, to the vertical writing in the body of the letter and to the back hand writing of the signature. I will ask you to compare the vertical writing with other documents to be presented in evidence and I will ask you to compare the backhand writing with other documents that are to be presented also."

Warren Chapman, No. 34 Wilbur avenue, Winthrop, superintendent of the building at No. 110 State street, was the next witness.

Q.—Did you ever see the man known as John R. Marshall? A.—Yes; three times. He was introduced to me by the receipt for rent.

Warren G. Whitmore of Melrose Highlands, chief operator of the Western Union on State street, examined by Mr. French.

Q.—Did you make an examination of this apparatus? (Handing him a telegraph outfit, one of the exhibits in the case.) A.—Yes, sir, at room 301 at 110 State street.

Q.—Did you notice anything while looking out of your windows across the street? A.—Yes, sir.

Tells of Wires.

Q.—What? A.—I noticed a table as if somebody was setting up an apparatus. A day or two later it disappeared from the window.

Q.—Was that apparatus there yesterday? A.—No, sir. I found tables and wire from one side of the room to the other.

Q.—Any outside connection with the telegraph wire? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Is that machine adapted for fake wire tapping? A.—It may be for fake tapping.

FIREMEN'S MASCOT DIES OF GRIEF

Robert Mason Wells, the fourteen-year-old Boston terrier of ex-Fire Commissioner Benjamin Wells, died "of engine house lonesomeness." "Bob," as he was called, was the only regular mascot of the fire department, and ever since Mr. Wells left the department, two years ago, had never been the same. The body of the dog was shipped to East Boothbay, Me., where he will be buried beside "The Brute," another dog owned by Mr. Wells.

Treating The Wrong Disease

Many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous prostration, another with pain here and there, and in this way they present alike to themselves and their easy-going or over-busy doctor, separate diseases, for which he, assuming them to be such, prescribes his pills and potions. In reality they are all only symptoms caused by some weakness or derangement of the organs distinctly feminine. The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering, keeps up his treatment until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better by reason of the wrong treatment, but probably worse. A proper medicine like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, directed to the cause would have entirely removed the disease, thereby dispelling all those distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery. It has been well said, that "a disease known is half cured."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific medicine, carefully devised by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate system. It is made of native American medicinal roots without the use of alcohol and is perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the female system.

As a powerful, invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. For overworked, "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nervine "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the distinctly feminine organs. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets invigorate the stomach, liver and bowels. One to three a dose. Easy to take as candy.

EVERY WOMAN ought to possess Dr. Pierce's great book, the People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a magnificent thousand-page illustrated volume. It teaches mothers how to care for their children an[illegible]mselves. It is the best doctor to have in the house in case of emergency. Over half a mil[illegible] sold at $1.50 each, but one free copy in paper-covers will be sent on recei[illegible]tamps to pay the cost of mailing only; or send 31 stamps for a handsom[illegible]y. MARTIN WALSH'S BEAUTIFUL WIFE, NOW IN EUROPE

MARTIN WALSH

MYSTERY GIRL IDENTIFIED AS GRACE KIMTON

Grace Kimton was discovered to-day to be the name of the mysterious woman who tried to commit suicide by taking morphine at the Central House, Malden. Despite her efforts to conceal her identity when she recovered consciousness at the Malden Hospital to-day the police ascertained her name, and that she came originally from Meredith, N. H.

But why the young woman should try to end her life is a mystery which baffles the investigators. It has been learned that for more than two years she nursed patients for several Medford doctors. During this time she has stopped several times at the Central House, Malden. Mrs. Benham, the proprietor of the hotel, knows Miss Kimton well by sight, but nothing more, not even her name, she says.

"I wanted to end it all," said Grace Kimton to-day at the Malden Hospital.

"Landlord—Here is $1 for the extensive trouble I have caused you. I wish it was $50 instead. I have been taking this drug all week, trying to kill myself," read a note found in her room after her moans had been heard last night and she had been hurried to the hospital.

The police of Malden are trying to find the girl's brother. He called upon her last night at the hotel and after he left she took poison in quantities. This man is believed to live in Stoneham. The authorities think he may be able to clear the mystery surrounding the girl.

At the hospital where she is recovering, she refuses to give her name, tell why she took the drug or anything about herself. The police believe that she may have been married. A plain gold ring on one of her fingers leads them to think this.

PRISONERS HUNT FOR FUGITIVE

NEWARK, N. J., June 2.—Ten convicts breaking jail to search for another convict who really wanted his liberty and had escaped is the rather unusual happening reported from the Essex County Penitentiary at Caldwell to-day. Robert Muskinsky was recaptured here to-day in a boarding house without the aid of the ten other convicts who were missed by the warden and who were pursued and taken back to prison.

Muskinsky and ten other convicts were sent to milk the prison herd of cows. Muskinsky decided to make a break for liberty. One of the deputies missed the eleven men and started a hunt. He found the faithful ten miles away from prison hunting for the unfaithful one. Muskinsky hid in the woods and when night came started to walk to this city. He came across a painter near the edge of the city, and he compelled the painter to change clothes with him. It took all the members of the painter's family to set him free after the police put him in jail.

SAILOR BOYS CRUISE ON THE RANGER

The Massachusetts nautical training ship Ranger, commanded by William F. Low, U. S. N., retired, sailed to-day for the annual trans-Atlantic cruise. She carried a full complement of 100 men for the first time in years. Many boys were disappointed as their applications were refused, all places being filled.

The Ranger was given a great ovation as she steamed out of the harbor. The cadets manned the rigging and gave cheer after cheer as the different vessels saluted with whistle and siren. The itinerary is as follows: Horta on the Island of Fayal; Lisbon, Portugal; Marseilles, St. Michaels, Halifax, N. S., Chesapeake Bay and Annapolis, Baltimore and Washington, then home. In Washington the boys will see President Taft, who will be their guest aboard the Ranger.

PRESIDENT DEPOSED, THEN RE-ELECTED

PROVIDENCE, June 2.—It became known that a meeting of shareholders of the New England Investment Company re-elected President Joseph De Champlain of Manchester, N. H., who was deposed several weeks after the company's affairs were taken into the courts.

The same meeting removed two of the directors, B. Napoleon Cartier and M. T. Cossett. Lavoque and Morin were accepted.

'NO QUARTER,' IS ORDER OF GEN. ESTRADA

BLUEFIELDS, June 2.—Co-operating with a column from Rama under the command of General Luis Mena, General Estrada, provisional President, to-day began a systematic campaign to drive from the eastern coast of Nicaragua the remnants of the Madriz army led by Generals Lara and Chavarria.

"Give quarter only to those who swear allegiance to the Estrada government," is the order given the provisional troops.

Skirmishes were reported to-day, but the Estrada commanders have informed the provisional headquarters that for the most part the Madriz soldiers, starved and ill, surrender when overtaken.

The Madriz chiefs are fleeing to the west through jungle and hills, with a smaller remnant of their forces than that with which General Chamorro escaped from Lake Managua when the expedition against Managua failed. Supplies are needed badly in Bluefields, and with the population swollen by sick, injured and prisoners, a serious food shortage is feared. The hospitals are also insufficiently stocked.

It was reported to-day that Estrada was considering the declaration of an independent nation, being unable to conquer the west coast, if the United States should further hesitate to interfere.

The work of a young American, Phil Pitman, of Boston, who had devised a system of mines around Bluefields, proved an important factor in saving the town from the Madriz forces.

Dr. Julian Irias, the representative on the Atlantic coast of President Madriz, has issued a decree that vessels cleared for Bluefields on or after June 1 may not enter this port without permission of the Madriz government. The decree was issued from aboard the Nicaraguan war vessel Venus, and if its provisions are observed it will mean that the coastwise traffic will be absolutely in the control of President Madriz and the consequent weakening of the position of the insurgents of Bluefields. The United States may object to this procedure.

150 WERE SLAIN, 250 WOUNDED AND 300 PRISONERS

WASHINGTON, June 2.—One hundred and fifty killed, 250 wounded and 300 captured is the casualty report of General Lara's army in its unsuccessful attempt to capture Bluefields, according to State Department advices to-day from Consul Moffat. Estrada, the victor, reports the Consul, is giving all possible aid to the wounded who have fallen into his hands. General Lara, who abandoned his position in the rear of Bluefields and is now in full retreat, the Consul adds, has with him now only a few hundred soldiers whose condition is pitiful.

TEDDY, TAFT, COURT FINDS

"Taft" or "Teddy," that was the question in the Lynn Police Court. Also whether Patrick Casey of No. 9 Hood street, that city, stole "Teddy," a Boston bull terrier belonging to John W. and Cora Thorne, or whether John W. and Cora Thorne had mistaken Patrick Casey's dog "Taft" for their own dog "Teddy," missing since last February.

Judge Lummus decided that it was "Taft," and discharged Casey, and Casey and "Taft" went home smilingly together.

Thorne and wife testified that their dog "Teddy," lost last Winter, was found recently in the care of Casey. Casey testified that he raised the dog "Taft" from infancy and displayed its mother's pedigree.

The dog, shut into the corridor for a time, responded to the ownership test when the door was opened by springing into the arms of Casey and whining and licking his face. Whereupon Mrs. Thorne, who still believed it her dog "Teddy" and loving the beast devotedly, sobbed in disappointment and became almost hysterical.

The Judge took the test as conclusive proof of the dog's identity.

ABDUCTRESS NURSES HOPE OF NEW TRIAL

PITTSBURG, June 2.—The abductress of the little Whitla boy, now serving a twenty-five-year sentence in the Western Penitentiary but with an application for a new trial to be heard this Fall, declares that unless the trial is granted she will surely die of disappointment.

Helen Boyle was found guilty of aiding her husband in the abduction of Billy Whitla of Sharon, Pa., and is a changed woman; "Living on hope," she says herself.

Helen Boyle is little more than a girl, but the vivacity and fascinating mannerisms that characterized her have all gone.

GIRL DROWNED WHILE FISHING

FRAUDULENT REMEDIES FOR THE HAIR

What Dr. Hutchinson Has to Say About Them

The Cosmopolitan Magazine for February, 1909, contained an article on the Hair and Scalp by Woods Hutchinson, M. D., which says "The strongest and most powerful curative element of scalp-tonics and hair-restorers is their smell, and the next powerful is their color. Most of them are frauds, pure and simple, and produce no effect whatever except upon the imagination and the nostrils of the users. The most common constituent of them all is alcohol, and the next common probably ammonia or some aromatic oil or extract which has the double advantage of a powerful odor and of producing a mild sense of warmth and local irritation. All of this class are mild irritants to the skin and produce a light temporary reddening by an increase in the amount of blood circulating through the scalp; but this has about as much effect on the hair-bulbs as the beams of the harvest moon have upon growing cabbages." The public is learning that hair that falls out, itching scalp and dandruff cannot be cured by these fakes and frauds. The only sure way to benefit the hair and scalp is to keep them clean and free from dust and disease germs. For this purpose Birt's Head Wash, the new scientific preparation, is most highly recommended, as it is made of Refined Soap, White of Eggs, Cochin Cocoanut Oil, Glycerin and Salicylic Acid. Any doctor will tell you there are no better things known than these for cleansing the hair and scalp. Tubes 25c, jars 50c.

WHAT PRINCETON PLANS TO DO WITH WYMAN MILLIONS

The late Isaac C. Wyman of Salem left an estate estimated at from $3,000,000 to $20,000,000, although the public never knew him to be a multi-millionaire. There was great surprise when it became known that Princeton University, his alma mater, was to get a fortune under the provisions of the will. Now it is made known how the Wyman millions are to be used for the benefit of the educational institution. His great gift will double the present income yielding foundation of the university.

The Wyman bequest is to be devoted and applied for the establishing, maintenance and development of the proposed graduate college at Princeton. William Cooper Proctor offered $500,000 to found the graduate college and gifts by other alumni would have swelled the amount to $1,000,000 if the university had not refused to accept.

The Wyman will names former Mayor John M. Raymond of Salem and Prof. Andrew F. West, dean of Princeton Graduate School, as administrators. Now it is asked if the colossal gift from the late Mr. Wyman, his intimate personal friend, is of a partisan nature to arm a powerful faction against President Woodrow Wilson, faculty and trustees who opposed taking the Proctor half million?

West Tells of Schools.

Professor West had outlined the proposed graduate college and wrote:

"The object of founding the graduate college is to create at Princeton a new agency, as powerful as can be devised, for reinforcing our system of liberal education in all its parts from the beginning of freshman year to the end of the graduate studies, in such a way that every student shall receive individually the finest development of which he is capable.

"Erratic men of mediocre general abilities are flocking into their specialties and becoming narrowly intense. They differ from specialists in the Old World in lacking the breadth of vision and richly diversified cultivation which is so evident a possession of the best English, German and French professors. The very conditions which are developing our present specialists are injuring the higher intellectual life of our universities. It is not now attractive to the finer spirits.

"The only sure way known to history of producing the greatest intellectual men is by bringing the strongest young men into the closest possible personal contact with great masters, who shall form them one by one in great subjects of study. The scholar must live in the life of his master. The way Witherspoon formed Madison here and Dwight developed Calhoun at Yale is the true way. It is the way Newman, Froude and Matthew Arnold were bred in the memorable group at Oriel College, as Arnold himself has so finely told us in his well-known words of intense conviction."

Copies of the Wyman will have arrived in Princeton, and it was found therein provided that "The trustees are to use, expend, and pay over from time to time, as my estate shall be in condition to do so, the whole of said bequests, for such purposes as may be determined upon by the Trustees of Princeton University, in enlarging and extending the power, usefulness, higher service, scholarship of the university."

Trustees Get Power.

Instead of specifying, as Mr. Proctor had insisted upon doing, that the ideals expressed in Prof. West's original proposal for the Graduate College be followed exactly, it was found that Mr. Wyman had, indeed, made his friend Prof. West an administrator of the will, but had lodged the discretion as to the precise uses to be made of his vast estate altogether with the Board of Trustees of Princeton.

The Princeton trustees are at liberty to follow Professor West's plans, which, without doubt, profoundly influenced and persuaded the testator, or they may reject them in toto, and build the college upon other plans, as sanctioned by them.

The old recluse must have watched the bitter contest over the Proctor gift in the secure and pleasant consciousness of having forestalled any such controversy when his demise should make known his bequest, made unconditionally as a memorial of Mr. Wyman's "lasting affection"—so the will phrases it—for his Alma Mater.

"A great institution that shall stand second to none, not even the famous universities of Germany and England, is planned in Mr. Wyman's generous bequest to the Graduate School of Princeton University," declared Mr. Raymond when he undertook the work of settling up the affairs of the estate.

But the establishment of just such an institution was Dean West's ideal for the Graduate College, as expressed in his prospectus. It is the ideal of Mr. Proctor, too, and of the alumni of Princeton who supported him. It is, unquestionably, the ideal of President Wilson, and of the Faculty and Trustees who supported him in disapproving Prof. West's plan because of some of its details.

PRIEST REFUSES TO REWED DIVORCEES

PAWTUCKET, R. I., June 2.—After having been divorced last March on his wife's charge of extreme cruelty, Robert Berndt, a rich contractor of this city, has succeeded in winning her back and the couple applied at the City Hall for a license to remarry.

Not only did Father Lowney of St. Joseph's Church refuse to perform the ceremony, but he further declared it entirely unnecessary. He said he would give them his blessing instead and they afterward departed for Shawomet Beach.

'NO QUARTER,' IS ORDER OF GEN. ESTRADA

BLUEFIELDS, June 2.—Co-operating with a column from Rama under the command of General Luis Mena, General Estrada, provisional President, to-day began a systematic campaign to drive from the eastern coast of Nicaragua the remnants of the Madriz army led by Generals Lara and Chavarria.

"Give quarter only to those who swear allegiance to the Estrada government," is the order given the provisional troops.

Skirmishes were reported to-day, but the Estrada commanders have informed the provisional headquarters that for the most part the Madriz soldiers, starved and ill, surrender when overtaken.

The Madriz chiefs are fleeing to the west through jungle and hills, with a smaller remnant of their forces than that with which General Chamorro escaped from Lake Managua when the expedition against Managua failed. Supplies are needed badly in Bluefields, and with the population swollen by sick, injured and prisoners, a serious food shortage is feared. The hospitals are also insufficiently stocked.

It was reported to-day that Estrada was considering the declaration of an independent nation [illegible] unable to conquer the west coast if the United States should further hesitate to interfere.

The work of a young American, Phil [illegible] of Boston, who had devised a system [illegible] around Bluefields, proved an important factor in saving the town from the Madriz forces.

[illegible] or "Teddy" that was the question in the Lynn Police Court. Also whether Patrick Casey of No. [illegible] Hood street, that city, stole "Teddy," a Boston bull terrier belonging to John W. and Cora Thorne, or whether John W. and Cora Thorne had mistaken Patrick Casey's dog "Taft" for their own dog "Teddy," missing since last February.

The dog sulked [illegible] for some time [illegible] into the arms of Casey and whining and licking his face. Whereupon Mrs. Thorne, who still believed it her dog [illegible] and loving the [illegible] disappointment and burst into almost hysterics.

The Judge took the test as conclusive proof of the dog's identity.

ABDUCTRESS NURSES HOPE OF NEW TRIAL

PITTSBURG, June 2.—The abductress of the little Whitla boy, now serving a twenty-five year sentence in the Western Penitentiary but with an application for a new trial to be heard this Fall, declares that unless the trial is granted she will surely die of disappointment.

Helen Boyle was found guilty of aiding her husband in the abduction of Billy Whitla of Sharon, Pa., and is a changed woman. "Living on hope," she says herself.

Helen Boyle is little more than a girl, but the vivacity and fascinating mannerisms that characterized her have all gone.

FRAUDULENT REMEDIES FOR THE HAIR

What Dr. Hutchinson Has to Say About Them

The Cosmopolitan Magazine for February, 1909, contained an article on the Hair and Scalp by Woods Hutchinson, M. D., which says "The strongest and most powerful curative element of scalp-tonics and hair-restorers is their smell, and the next powerful is their color. Most of them are frauds, pure and simple, and produce no effect whatever except upon the imagination and the nostrils of the users. The most common constituent of them all is alcohol, and the next common probably ammonia or some aromatic oil or extract which has the double advantage of a powerful odor and of producing a mild sense of warmth and local irritation. All of this class are mild irritants to the skin and produce a light temporary reddening by an increase in the amount of blood circulating through the scalp; but this has about as much effect on the hair-bulbs as the beams of the harvest moon have upon growing cabbages." The public is learning that hair that falls out, itching scalp and dandruff cannot be cured by these fakes and frauds. The only sure way to benefit the hair and scalp is to keep them clean and free from dust and disease germs. For this purpose Birt's Head Wash, the new scientific preparation, is most highly recommended, as it is made of Refined Soap, White of Eggs, Cochin Cocoanut Oil, Glycerin and Salicylic Acid. Any doctor will tell you there are no better things known than these for cleansing the hair and scalp. Tubes 25c, jars 50c.

WHAT PRINCETON PLANS TO DO WITH WYMAN MILLIONS

The late Isaac C. Wyman of Salem left an estate estimated at from $3,000,000 to $20,000,000, although the public never knew him to be a multi-millionaire. There was great surprise when it became known that Princeton University, his alma mater, was to get a fortune under the provisions of the will. Now it is made known how the Wyman millions are to be used for the benefit of the educational institution. His great gift will double the present income yielding foundation of the university.

The Wyman bequest is to be devoted and applied for the establishing, maintenance and development of the proposed graduate college at Princeton. William Cooper Procter offered $500,000 to found the graduate college and gifts by other alumni would have swelled the amount to $1,000,000 if the university had not refused to accept.

The Wyman will names former Mayor John M. Raymond of Salem and Prof. Andrew F. West, dean of Princeton Graduate School, as administrators. Now it is asked if the colossal gift from the late Mr. Wyman, his intimate personal friend, is of a partisan nature to arm a powerful faction against President Woodrow Wilson, faculty and trustees who opposed taking the Procter half million?

West Tells of Schools.

Professor West had outlined the proposed graduate college and wrote:

"The object of founding the graduate college is to create at Princeton a new agency as powerful as can be devised, for reinforcing our system of liberal education in all its parts from the beginning of freshman year to the end of the graduate studies in such a way that every student shall receive individually the finest development of which he is capable.

"Each [illegible] of mediocre general students are flocking into their specialties and becoming narrowly intense. They differ from specialists of the Old World [illegible]

[illegible]

"The only sure way known to [illegible]

[illegible] Newman [illegible] and Matthew Arnold [illegible] at Oriel College [illegible] Arnold [illegible] so finely [illegible] was known [illegible] of intense [illegible]

Copies of the Wyman will have arrived in Princeton and it was found therein provided that the trustees are to use [illegible] over from time to time [illegible] his estate [illegible] of said amounts [illegible] purposes [illegible] may be determined [illegible] the Trustees of Princeton University in enlarging and extending the power, usefulness, higher service, scholarship of the university.

Trustees Get Power.

Instead of specifying, as Mr. Procter had insisted upon doing, that the ideals expressed in Prof. West's original proposal for the Graduate College be followed exactly, it was found that Mr. Wyman had, indeed, made his friend Prof. West an administrator of the will, but had lodged the discretion as to the precise uses to be made of his vast estate altogether with the Board of Trustees of Princeton.

The Princeton trustees are at liberty to follow Professor West's plans, which, without doubt, profoundly influenced and persuaded the testator, or they may reject them in toto, and build the college upon other plans as sanctioned by them.

The old recluse must have watched the bitter contest over the Procter gift in the secure and pleasant consciousness of having forestalled any such controversy when his demise should make known his bequest, made unconditionally as a memorial of Mr. Wyman's "lasting affection"—so the will phrases it—for his Alma Mater.

"A great institution that shall stand second to none, not even the famous universities of Germany and England, is planned in Mr. Wyman's generous bequest to the Graduate School of Princeton University," declared Mr. Raymond when he undertook the work of settling up the affairs of the estate.

But the establishment of just such an institution was Dean West's ideal for the Graduate College, as expressed in his prospectus. It is the ideal of Mr. Procter, too, and of the alumni of Princeton who supported him. It is, unquestionably, the ideal of President Wilson and of the Faculty and Trustees who supported him in disapproving Prof. West's plan because of some of its details.

Treating The Wrong Disease

Many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous prostration, another with pain here and there, and in this way they present alike to themselves and their easy-going or over-busy doctor, separate diseases, for which he, assuming them to be such, prescribes his pills and potions. In reality they are all only symptoms caused by some weakness or derangement of the organs distinctly feminine. The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering, keeps up his treatment until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better by reason of the wrong treatment, but probably worse. A proper medicine like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, directed to the cause would have entirely removed the disease, thereby dispelling all those distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery. It has been well said, that "a disease known is half cured."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific medicine, carefully devised by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate system. It is made of native American medicinal roots without the use of alcohol and is perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the female system.

As a powerful, invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. For overworked, "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nervine "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the distinctly feminine organs. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets invigorate the stomach, liver and bowels. One to three a dose. Easy to take as candy.

EVERY WOMAN ought to possess Dr. Pierce's great book, the People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a magnificent thousand-page illustrated volume. It teaches mothers how to care for their children and themselves. It is the best doctor to have in the house in case of emergency. Over half a million copies were sold at $1.50 each, but one free copy in paper-covers will be sent on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay the cost of mailing only; or send 31 stamps for a handsome cloth-bound copy. JEFFRIES IS IN PERFECT SHAPE TO FIGHT JACK

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

GOVERNOR SAYS FIGHT IS FRAMED FOR JEFF TO WIN

FIGHT WILL BE A BIG FRAME-UP, DECLARES GOVERNOR GILLETTE

CHICAGO, June 2.—That the championship battle between Jeffries and Johnson to be staged in San Francisco on July 4 is nothing more than a "frame-up" is the essence of an interview accredited to Governor J. N. Gillette of Calofornia and published in the Chicago Examiner to-day. Governor Gillette is quoted at length as saying that he believes Johnson woud be afraid to win in California and that if he loses he will be about $150,000 to the good and will be able to retire.

The statement as printed follows:

"I think the Jeffries-Johnson fight is a frame-up, and that Johnson has no chance to win, and doesn't expect to win. I am convinced that Jeff was assured he would be the winner before he consented to re-enter the game, and that Johnson has been offered, and has agreed to accept, a big sum and an interest in the moving picture receipts to let Jeff win, and thus throw the championship back to the white race.

"I believe it is a frame-up. There was no chance to get Jeff in the ring again in my opinion, unless he was assured in advance of victory. Jeff doesn't need the money, and while he may be patriotic and willing, 'to bear the white man's burden,' he had too much to lose in prestige to take a chance on defeat.

Calls Match "Frame-Up."

"On the other hand Johnson has very little to lose. If he makes a good showing against the unbeaten champion it will be a great honor in itself and if he can win enough to make him independent for life by letting Jeff regain the title I think he will do it. He needs the money and I think he has arranged to get it.

"But eliminating a frame-up for Jeff what chance has Johnson? He would have to go into the ring prepared to whip not only Jeffries, but the referee and a majority of the male population of California. I don't believe the crowd would stand for the negro being returned the winner and I am confident that Johnson before he would take a chance would fall down and knock himself out if that were the only way he could let Jeff win.

"Prize fighting and foot racing are on a plane with each other when it comes to a frame-up to get the money of fools. I would [illegible] it on either event if I were [illegible]. But this Jeffries-Johnson [illegible] the race horse touts call 'a lead pipe cinch.' There is only one man in it and that is Jeffries.

"It will, no doubt, be a fine sparring exhibition, as that is needed in the moving pictures, but when the time comes it will be on Johnson's dusky brow that the crown of thorns will be pressed down, and pressed down hard.

"I am not going to interfere. The law permits these bouts; the supervisors have granted a permit and that ends it so far as I am concerned. I could stop it if there was likely to be a riot or public disorder, but I believe there is no chance of that for, as I have said, I think that has all been arranged in advance. The only thing that could start a riot at the ringside would be for Johnson to win, and there isn't a chance."

JEFF WILL STAND BACK OF RICKARD TO REFEREE FIGHT

JEFFRIES TRAINING CAMP, Rowardennan, Cal., June 2.—If Tex Rickard withdraws as referee of the Jeffries-Johnson fight on July 4 in favor of Eddie Smith, the Oakland sporting writer, it will not be because Jim Jeffries is anxious to bring about the change.

While the former champion is an ardent admirer of Smith, he says that he has given his official O. K. to the selection of Rickard and that it would not be sportsmanlike for him to come out now and advocate a switch to his original selection for third man in the ring. Through Sam Berger Jeffries clearly sets forth his position.

"Jeffries's position is just like this," said Berger. "He has accepted Rickard after stating his preference for Smith. After accepting Rickard, in whom he has full confidence, he cannot very well ask him to resign. He is good enough for Jeffries, but in the event that he wishes to retire then Jeffries is ready to accept Smith. The matter is decidedly up to Rickard. Jim favors neither man."

Berger left here last night for San Francisco, ostensibly to arrange for moving picture contracts. It is believed, however, that his visit also has to do with the referee question.

It is expected he will confer with Rickard to-day and that the question of whether it might not be for the best interests of the fight to have a man not financially interested in the bout as referee will come up for discussion.

Jeffries put in a hard day's work to-day. He went out for a run this morning and will devote the afternoon to gymnasium work and handball.

GOTCH THROWS MIGHTY POLE AND RETAINS TITLE

STATEMENT BY GOTCH.

"I have wrestled my last match. Nothing will induce me to return to the mat. I think I entitled to rest on my laurels, for I have never refused any man a match and I have beaten them one and all. I shall go to Jeffries camp to help him get ready for Jonnson, after which I shall lead the simple life in the Iowa meadows I love so well."

STATEMENT BY ZBYSZKO.

"I lost on a hand shake, or rather on a hand shake that should have occurred, but did not. When I faced Gotch in the first bout I extended my hand courteously and looked for him to do the same. Now what does he do? He dives under my extended arm, grabs me around the legs, and of course upsets me. Is that fair play? It may be here; I think it is so considered, judging by the crowds' approval, but it is not fair play in my country or in any part of Europe. I am going home in a few days, but I'll be back and when I return I'm going to beat Gotch if he gives me another trial."

CHICAGO, June 2.—Frank Gotch got to the Pole twice at the Coliseum and he won't have to send his proofs to the Danes. The Iowan champion of all champions at the wrestling game, made Zybszko, his Polish challenger for the crown, look like a tyro at the game of grapple by easily throwing the European twice inside of half an hour.

Gotch threw the gigantic Galician with the most ridiculous ease [illegible] the first bout [illegible] six and one half seconds. Frank rushed out of his corner when time was called, and diving for the legs upset the Pole with that great American school-boy hold.

In the second bout Gotch allowed the Pole to get behind him once or twice, but Frank was never within comet distance of danger and simply toyed with the Pole. When Gotch thought the moving picture men had enough he turned loose and getting a wrist [illegible] and bar arm hold, won the fall in 27 minutes and [illegible] seconds.

Carry Gotch on Shoulders.

The crowd expected Gotch to show speed but it did not look for the tremendous speed Frank brought with him. Most of the time Zybszko was reaching for Frank a fraction of a second after Gotch passed that place. Zybszko's boasted strength never got a chance to show. As one fan remarked after the bout, "Zybszko couldn't beat Gotch with four arms and three legs."

When Frank put the Pole away for the second and decisive fall, the frenzied crowd broke through the ropes and carried the champion on its shoulders to the dressing room.

When Zybszko [illegible] the ring every seat in the [illegible] was occupied. The Pole's friends present cheered their [illegible]. When Gotch appeared a few minutes after the applause was terrific.

Zybszko, whose [illegible] arm was bandaged to protect [illegible], appeared somewhat nervous. He was garbed in blue trunks and was trained down to his muscles, weighing [illegible] pounds. Gotch, wearing his boyish smile, appeared confident of success. Referee Fleming called the rivals to the center of the ring and after a short conference the combatants shook hands.

Gotch Streak of Lightning.

No sooner had the referee called time than Gotch sprang across the ring toward the Pole, shot under his guarding arms, grabbed him back of both knees and flopped him on his back. Gotch was on him like a blue streak and before Zybszko had drawn his third breath Gotch had him pinned with a bar arm and half-Nelson hold in 6¼ seconds.

In the second bout they stood up head and head for seven minutes before Gotch got a hold on the Pole's leg and floored him. The Pole was up quickly, however, and they tugged three minutes when Gotch got behind him in ten minutes. Gotch had no trouble heaving the heavy Pole around, although at fourteen minutes the Pole managed to get on top. Gotch quickly broke the hold, a sort of awkward near-scissors hold. For the next few minutes Gotch contented himself with light crotch and near toe holds, from which the Pole occasionally freed himself.

At twenty minutes Gotch started out in earnest and his marvelous speed made the Pole look like a sliding mountain in comparison. Zybszko began to grunt as the pain shot up his leg and a smile crossed Gotch's face.

Mighty Pole Outclassed.

At twenty-five minutes Zybszko actually took the aggressive and locked his arms around Gotch amidships. Frank studied the situation for a moment and then made up his mind to change positions with the Pole, which he did by darting away, turning back on the Pole and then picking him up and flopping him.

In the melee on the mat the Pole managed to scramble up again, get another "strange" on Frank's torso and give him a few light tosses. Frank always landed on his feet. Then Gotch tore in on the Pole, and kept him squirming away from the threatened toeholds.

With Zybszko off his guard and thinking of nothing but that awful toe grip, Frank varied his tactics and switched to the Pole's upper works. He made a feint on a half-Nelson and crotch, turned the Pole almost over on his fifth ribs and then suddenly got a lock on his wrist supplementing this with a bar arm. The Pole began to cave. Slowly his shoulders were forced to the mat and it was all over in twenty-seven seconds and thirty seconds.

TOMMY FURY TO BOX KID PANTZ AT A. A. A.

The series of boxing events arranged for the show at the Armory Club next Tuesday will have some class to them. Those who were present when Dave Deshler and Eddie Murphy boxed a few weeks ago agreed that the bout was one of the most earnest and rugged they had ever witnessed.

These lads will be the main attraction for twelve rounds next Tuesday, both eager and anxious for victory, and the Armory Club members know what to expect when they get the signal.

POLITICS STIRS CAMPS OF THE RIVAL FIGHTERS

By W. W. NAUGHTON.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 2.—Politics, politics, politics. There is so much politics around the training camps just now that the work of the gladiators is temporarily lost sight of.

Take the referee question to begin with. Until Tex Rickard declared himself emphatically the whole situation was in a state of ferment. There was talk of midnight meetings. The conflicting stories a gatherer of news was compelled to listen to were sufficient to addle his reasoning apparatus. Trying to figure out something feasible from the swirl was like trying to trace the patterns in a boiling pot, where there is nothing but ever changing eddies and bubbles and constantly rising scum.

It all came, of course, of the feverish desire of various professional judges of ring events to be crowned Queen of the May for the fateful Fourth.

The latest development was the Eddie Smith-Billy Nolan-Jack Johnson incident. Nolan, who loves the travail of pugilistic politics as Johnson loves fried chicken and corn fritters, prevailed upon Johnson to withdraw his objections to Smith, who in the beginning was Jeffries's one best bet in the referee line.

Rickard Won't Quit.

Johnson promised to do so with the understanding that his being won over to the Eddie Smith side did not count for anything unless Tex Rickard wanted to step down and out. Rickard at first wanted to step down and out, but now says he is not going to retire in favor of any one and he says it in a pretty forceful way.

Johnson's hint that he is likely to part company with Manager George Little is another phase of camp politics, the majority of opinions being that Johnson is simply paving the way for the announcement that he is going under the wing of Billy Nolan, former partner of Battling Nelson. Nolan has been very much in evidence around Johnson's camp for weeks.

It was said that he was there in the interest of Billy Delaney and that he perfected the deal by which Delaney became supervisor-in-chief of Johnson's training. It was said with more certainty that Nolan was out at the beach trying to swing Johnson in line for Eddie Smith, who possessed a commendable ambition to referee the big fight. This latest ru[illegible] that while doing a little something for his friends, Nolan has been keeping [illegible] eye on the main chance, is not hard to believe.

Exchange of Compliments.

The daily exchange of compliments between Jack Johnson and Jim Corbett is becoming part and parcel of the news from the rival pugilistic strongholds. It is believed that the end of the wordy feud will be a six or a ten-round public sparring exhibition between "Gentleman Jim" and "Jocular Jack." There are some persons mean enough to say that an understanding on the point has already been reached and that the persiflage we are being treated should really be labelled "advance notices." Perish the thought.

It is said that Corbett, down there at Rowardennan, can deliver himself of a stinging reply to Johnson's latest without the slightest hesitation. Johnson frames his rebukes in a more deliberate way. He has established a literary bureau at his camp, with Sig Hart as consulting editor, and he revises his replies to Corbett before sending them out for publication.

Jack's very latest to "Gentleman Jim" is a query. Here it is: "Why did you come to my home in Chicago, Jim Corbett? Why did you come? I want the public to know. Will Mr. Corbett please answer?"

"PERFECT" IS DOCTOR'S OPINION OF JEFFRIES

By H. M. WALKER.

JEFFRIES'S TRAINING CAMP, Rowardennan, Cal., June 2.—Further confirming [illegible] that Jim Jeffries will be in perfect physical trim when he faces Jack Johnson on July 4 has been contributed by Dr. Charles V. Cross, United States examining surgeon, of San Francisco, following the most complete medical examination the big fellow has undergone since the start of his training season. Dr. Cross was at one time physician to Jack Johnson, and with his statement of Jeffries's condition he gave out a comparison of the physical qualities of the pair.

For nearly two hours the physician watched and worked over Jeff in his rubbing room. At the end of that time Dr. Cross gave out the following diagnosis:

"[illegible] the course of [illegible] I have examined 15,000 or 20,000 men and I have never seen anything so wonderful as the strength, power and perfect condition of this man. His eye is clear and steady, indicating a clear and well-balanced judgment. His heart action surprised me, for [illegible] pairs of [illegible] beat was only sixty-eight. In the average man it would have been eighty or over.

Every Organ Sound.

"I was especially careful to search in his lungs for any trace of the pneumonia with which he was severely afflicted years ago. The lungs showed absolutely no evidence of pneumonia, and the respiratory [illegible] free and [illegible]. The breathing machinery is in excellent order. Six parts of the physical man must be right for him to stand to enter a strenuous athletic contest: his brain, heart, lungs, stomach, kidneys and liver. Every one of these organs in Jeffries is perfectly sound and free from flaw.

"As to a comparison of the physique of Jeffries and Johnson, there is not a large margin of difference. Both men are in fine bodily trim. Johnson is, like Jeffries, sound throughout. Johnson has considerably more fat on his body, but when the pair step into the ring I believe they will almost be an even match, so far as condition goes.

Muscles Are Marvelous.

"My examination included the individual muscles and groups of muscles from his toes to his scalp. The symmetrical development of the muscles on both sides showed me that Jeffries's muscular condition is little short of marvelous. He is practically in fighting condition now, and needs only to watch with extreme care that he does not overdo himself before the day of the battle."

Jeffries made a full day of it in his training camp. He donned the gloves for the first time in camp in nearly ten days, going eight fast rounds with his three sparring partners. The first two sparring sessions were with Bob Armstrong and Joe Choynski [illegible] Sam Berger [illegible] left [illegible] his manager's [illegible] his nose to bleed [illegible] violently and the boxing [illegible].

Followers of the sport who gathered to see Johnson don his gym [illegible] minutes with the [illegible] bag Johnson showed to best advantage, for he cut loose at times and had the spectators in an uproar over his [illegible]. FAST HORSES IN OPENING RACES

FALL RIVER, June 2.—The Fall River Driving Club will open its season at Riverside trotting park on Saturday. The prospects are bright for some fine sport this season. There will be a number of new ones on the track this season and one at least, of the old ones, Version, is said to have developed speed under careful training that will surprise someone before the season is over.

Dr. O. H. Jackson has two speedy ones with which he expects to capture a few [illegible]. One of these is Monroe, who has won a first, a second and two thirds [illegible] the Charles River [illegible] already this season and [illegible] at the Forge [illegible]. The other is Nell in Strauss, a famous New York speedway performer and [illegible] with a mark of 2:03½. Dr. Jackson got this one last season, but did [illegible] start him. He expects to have [illegible] record from this season, however.

Pat Laily, driver of Early Bird, Jr., who won the cup last season for capturing the most [illegible], says the old horse is better than ever this year and he expects to make the others hustle, but this season he will likely have [illegible] to contend with this season.

This horse owned by George Gracie was one of [illegible] last season [illegible] didn't get into the fast class until late in the season. Mr. Gracie confidently expects that the horse that [illegible] him in some one of the races this season will have to go better than 1.05 and the track record for the driving [illegible] 1.04½.

Chauncey H. Sears's Chase has trotted the fastest heat on the Charles River Speedway this season and was the winner of the cup for fastest time on the local track last season. Nothing has appeared at the driving club's matinees, but one can never tell what may happen before the season is over.

Altogether it sure does look good for the sport this season on the local track.

Almost everybody in Boston reads the AMERICAN.

CIRCUIT SPRINTERS TO RACE AT REVERE

The first national circuit sprint meet of the season in this section is scheduled for Saturday night at the Revere track. All the leading American short distance riders will be on hand.

At each national circuit meet throughout this section and New York one championship event will be raced. Each winner will be credited with [illegible] points, second man 3 points, third man 2 points and the fourth man will get 1 point. The man having scored the most points at the end of the season will be declared the American champion.

BILLY SHEVLIN IS VICTOR AT WEBSTER

WEBSTER, June 2.—Frank Perron of Pawtucket was given the decision over Maurice Lemoine of Webster at a meeting of the Lakeside Athletic Club. It was one of the fastest exhibitions the club has ever seen, both men fighting hard in every round.

In the semi final between Billy Shevlin of Boston and Jack Langdon of Philadelphia, Shevlin was given the decision, having the best of the six rounds. In the preliminary Kid Raymond of Webster knocked out Young Beebe of Webster in the first round.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 2.—George McQuillan, the star pitcher of the Phillies [illegible] fined $250 and suspended indefinitely without pay.

This action was taken [illegible] Manager Dooin [illegible] approved by President Fogel, and was due to the poor pitching of McQuillan [illegible] the Cardinals [illegible] defeated the [illegible] although the latter began the game with a four run lead.

GOOD BOUTS AT AMERICAN A. C.

Following [illegible] the heels of the great Walsh-M[illegible] contest the boxing fans of this city have [illegible] attention drawn to the Tommy Rawson-George Murray match, which comes off at the American A. C. to-night. Rawson and Murray ought to put up an article of boxing worth going a long ways to see. Rawson has developed into the front ranks as a featherweight, having held his own with boys like Tommy O'Toole of [illegible] and Billy Allen, the [illegible] featherweight champion, within the last few months.

In Murray [illegible] meets a seasoned veteran who knows every angle of the glove game. The East Boston lad will need all his skill to score a win.

The preliminaries to-night promise some good sport, the one between Tom Cook [illegible] the colored welterweight, and Jimmy [illegible] in particular.

YALE ELEVEN GOING TO TED COY'S HOME

YALE OARSMEN OUT ON THAMES

GALES FERRY, Ct., June 2.—The Yale varsity and freshmen crews took another [illegible] on the Thames to-day, the men putting in over an hour's hard work.

Wallis, the injured stroke, did not row. In his place was Coburn, who rowed No. 2 in the varsity four-oar last June. Coburn seemed to fill the place and the crew looked good to the natives of the Ferry, who turned out to see the first spin. Wallis hopes to begin rowing again in a few days but no one knows what he will be able to do with his injured shoulder.

In speaking of Wallis Coach Kennedy said:

"It is difficult to know just what to do under the circumstances. If I allow Wallis to go in and do the regular work it may put him out of the boat for good. If on the other hand I hold the crew back on account of Wallis then I am certain to upset the entire crew."

The members of the freshmen eight after their row, elected J. R. Walker of Brookline, Mass., captain of the crew. Walker has rowed at No. 6 all during the Spring practice.

Naturally a girl cannot enter the lists with a married woman; modesty and dignity forbid her running after a man.

A married woman can invite a man to her house on a dozen pretexts; she invites him to meet girls and then she usurps all his attention.

I haven't much respect for the husband of a married flirt; it's a poor sort of man who can't take care of his own.

The married flirt does much to lower her own sex in the eyes of men. She prejudices them against matrimony.

Men are prone to judge all women by the married flirt, but then men are [illegible] a good many things.

And then after a time, the men would open their foolish eyes and say: "There is something strange about this; girls never seem to go to Mrs. B[illegible]'s house, and after all it's the girls that we want to marry"—and that would be the end of the reign of the married flirt, so far as those young men were concerned.

How They Make Anarchists.

One morning there was a new notice tacked on the station bulletin board advising a change in the passenger schedule. The 8 o'clock was set back to its original 7:45. On inquiry it appeared that a Barton prototype of Hopper had been flying around with a petition alleging that the [illegible] found the 7:45 too early for them and that the 8 o'clock made them too late. Fifteen per cent of the signers were residents of [illegible]

We are the servants of the public and we aim to please, but we changed to eight because the exigencies of operation demanded the change just then. Now we are changing once for the same reason. If we can transport [illegible] two minutes a large percentage of [illegible] would still swallow down [illegible] breakfasts in two minutes thirteen seconds and then split the wind at eighteen miles an hour to snatch at the [illegible] particular baggage car. [illegible] that is just that attitude of [illegible] corporations that is making anarchists.

THE FORTUNE HUNTER

How a Business Failure Wins Success Through Love and Stick-to-itiveness

Synopsis of Previous Instalments

NATHANIEL DUNCAN has lost his job with Atwater & Spaulding, importers, after confessing to the firm that he is "a failure in life."

It is the last of a long series of failure "to hold down" good jobs, which his friend, Harry Kellogg, a rising Wall Street man, has secured for him.

Kellogg and Duncan were chums together when Kellogg was making his way through college and when Duncan, the pampered son of a rich father, aided him financially and in other ways to complete his course.

Duncan led a life of regal ease until he was five years out of college, when a financial crash wiped out his father's fortune and killed the old man. Duncan, penniless, was forced to shift for himself. Pride kept him from communicating with any of his old time acquaintances, and it was not until he had sunk to the lowest dregs that Kellogg, who had not seen him since college days, found his once affluent chum, a derelict on one of the benches in Washington Square. He took Duncan to his richly furnished bachelor quarters, near Fifth avenue, rehabilitated and introduced him to his Wall Street friends and secured for him job after job.

A life of idleness and richness, however, told heavily against the young man, and he lost every job as soon as he got it.

Now he was on his way to see Kellogg, determined no longer to impose on his friend, and, if need be, to go back to the life from which Kellogg had rescued him.

At Kellogg's room he hears great news. Kellogg has been taken into the powerful Wall Street firm of L. J. Bartlett & Co., as the junior member. Kellogg refuses to let him go, and demands that he remain for dinner and celebrate the event.

Over the coffee and cigars Duncan unbosoms himself. "Once and for all," he tells Kellogg. "I am through imposing on you. I won't take any more favors at your hands. I can't go on living on you."

Kellogg is stumped, but only for a moment. A brilliant idea comes to him. Duncan has hinted at the river and suicide. He is willing to do anything to make money, but will not accept charity.

"I know a way," said Kellogg, his face all animation, "by which, if you'll discard a scruple or two, you can be worth a million dollars—or thereabouts—in a year."

Duncan sits agape, believing his friend had suddenly gone mad. He makes Kellogg repeat it over and over again to make sure that his ears were not playing him some fanciful trick.

But Kellogg is deadly serious, and, while Duncan sits spellbound, he outlines, in all its details, an amazing plan, in which Duncan is to play the role of a fortune hunter, and to seek an heiress in some inland town, away from the influence of large cities, and where the marriageable female population is to male population in the ratio of 4 to 1.

"I can't pick out the exact locality," says Kellogg, "or name the exact size of her pile, but it will be anywhere from several hundred thousand to a million or more."

"YOU'D think so if you knew what the boys were like. There isn't one in ten that a girl with any sense or self-respect could force herself to marry if she ever saw anything better. Do you begin to see my drift?"

"I do not. But go on drifting."

"No? Why, the demand for eligible males is 300 per cent. in excess of the supply. Don't you know—no, you don't; I got to that first—that there are twenty times as many old maids in small country towns as there are in the cities? It's a fact, and the reason for it is because when they were young they couldn't lower themselves to accept the pick of the local matrimonial market. Now, do you see?"

"You're as interesting as a magazine serial. Please continue in your next. I pant with anticipation."

"You're an ass . . . Now take a young chap from a city, with a good appearance, more or less a gentleman, who doesn't talk like a yap, or walk like a yap, or dress like a yap, or act like a yap, and throw him into such a town long enough for the girls to get acquainted with him. He simply can't lose, can't fail to cop out the best-looking girl with the biggest bankroll in town. I tell you, there's nothing to it."

"It's wonderful to listen to you, Harry."

"I'm talking horse sense, my son. Now, consider yourself. Down on your luck, dont know how to earn a decent living, refusing to accept anything from your friends, ready (you say) to do almost anything to get some money. And think of the country heiresses, with plenty of money for two, pining away in—in innocuous desuetude—hundreds of them, fine, straight, good girls, girls you could easily fall in love with, sighing their lives away for the lack of the likes of you.

A Life on Easy Street

"Now, why not take one, Nat—when you come to consider it, it's your duty—marry her and her bank roll, make her happy, make yourself happy, and live a contented life on the sunny side of Easy street for the rest of your natural born days? Can't you see it, now?"

"Yes," Duncan admitted, half persuaded of the plausibility of the scheme. "I see—and I admire immensely the intellect that conceived the notion, Harry. But—I can't help thinking there must be a catch in it somewhere."

"Not if you follow my instructions. You see, having come from just such a hole in the ground, I know just what I'm talking about. Believe me, everything depends on the way you go about it. There are a lot of things to contend with at first; you won't enjoy it at all, to begin with. But I can demonstrate how it can be managed so that you'll win out to a moral certainty."

Duncan drew a deep breath, sat back and looked Kellogg over very critically. There was not a suspicion of a gleam of humor in his face; to the contrary, it blazed with the ardor of the instinctive schemer, the man who, with the ability to originate, throws himself heart and soul into the promotion of the product of his imagination.

Kellogg was not sketching the outlines of a gigantic practical joke; he believed implicitly in the feasibility of his project; and so strongly that he could infuse even the less susceptible fancy of Duncan with some of his faith.

"If I didn't know you so well, Harry," said Duncan, slowly, "I'd be certain you were mad. I'm not at all sure that I'm sane. It's raving idiocy—and it's a pretty damned rank thing to do, to start deliberately out to marry a woman for her money. But I've been through a little hell of my own in my time, and—it's not alluring to contemplate a return to it. There's nothing mad enough nor bad enough to stop me. What've I got to do?"

A Lesson in Fortune-Hunting

Kellogg beamed his triumph. "You'll try it on, then?"

"I'll try anything on. It's a contemptible, low-lived piece of business—but good may come of it; you can't tell. What've I got to do?"

Slipping back, Kellogg knitted his fingers and stared at the ceiling, smiling conditions that first appealed to his understanding as essentials toward success.

"First, pick out your town; one of two or three thousand inhabitants—no larger. I'd suggest, at a hazard guess, some place in the interior of Pennsylvania. Most of such towns have at least one rich man with a marriageable daughter—but we'll make sure of that before we settle on one. Of course any suburban town is barred."

"How so?"

"Oh, they don't count. The girls always know people in the city—can get there easily. That spoils the game."

"How about the game laws?"

"I'm coming to them. Of course there isn't an open or close season, and the hunting's always good, but there a few precautionary measures to be taken if you want to be sure of bagging an heiress. You won't like most of 'em."

"Like 'em! I'll live by them!"

"Well, here come the things you mustn't do. You mustn't swear or use slang; you mustn't smoke and you mustn't drink"—

"Heavens! are these people as inhuman as all that?"

"Worse than that. It might be fatal if you were ever seen in the hotel bar. And to begin with, you must refuse all invitations, of any sort, whether to dances, parties, church sociables, or even Sunday dinners."

"Why Sunday dinners?"

"Because Sunday's the only day you'll be invited. Dinner on weekdays is from twelve to twelve-thirty, and it's strictly a business matter—no time for guests. But you needn't fret; they won't ask you till they've sized you up pretty carefully."

"Oh! * * *"

One Particular Item.

"Moreover, you must be very particular about your dress; it must be absolutely faultless, but very quiet; clothing sober—dark grays and blacks—and plain, but the very last word as to cut and fit. And everything must be in keeping—the very best of shirts, collars, ties, hats, socks, shoes, underwear——"

Kellogg caught Duncan's look and laughed. "Your laundress will report on everything, you know; so you must be impeccable."

"I'll be even that—whatever it is."

"Be very particular about having your shoes polished, shave daily and manicure yourself religiously—but don't let 'em catch you at it."

"Would they raid me if they did?"

"And then, my son, you must work."

Kellogg paused to let his lesson sink in. After a time Duncan observed plaintively: "I knew there was a catch in it somewhere. What kind of work?"

"It doesn't make any difference, so long as you get and hold some job in the town."

"Well, that let's me out. You'll have to sic some other poor devil on this glittering proposition of yours. I couldn't hold a job in——"

"Wait! I'll tell you how to do it in just a minute."

"I don't mind listening, but——"

"You'll cinch the whole business by going to church without a break. Don't ever fail—morning and evening every Sunday. Don't forget that," explains Kellogg.

"Why?"

"It's the most important thing of all."

"Does going to church make such a hit with the young female Jasper—the Jasperette, as it were?"

"It'll make you more solid than anything else with her popper and mommer, and that's very necessary when you're a candidate for their ducats as well as their daughter. You must work and you must go to church."

"That can't be all. Surely you can think of something else?"

"Those are the cardinal rules—church and work until you've landed your heiress. After that you can move back to civilization. . . .

"Now as soon as you strike your town you want to make arrangements for board and lodging in some old woman's house—preferably an old maid. You'll be sure to find at least half a dozen of 'em, willing to take boarders, but you want to be equally sure to pick out the one that talks the most; so that she'll tell the neighbors all about you.

"Don't worry about that, though; they all talk. When you've moved in, stock up your room with about twenty of the driest-looking books in the world—law books look most imposing; fix up a table with lots of stationery—pens and pencils, red and black ink and all that sort of thing; make the room look as if you were the most sincere student ever. And by no means neglect to have a well-worn Bible prominently in evidence; you can buy one second-hand at some bookstore before you start out."

"I'd have to, of course. I thank you for the flattery. Proceed with the programme of the gay, mad life I must lead. I'm going to have a swell time; that's perfectly plain."

"As soon as you're shaken down in your room, make the rounds of the stores and ask for work. Try and get into the dry-goods emporium if you can; the girls all shop there. But anything will do, except a grocery or a hardware store and places like that. You mustn't consider any employment that would soil your clothes or roughen your lily-white hands."

"You expect me to believe I'd have any chance of winning a millionaire's daughter if I were a ribbon clerk in a dry goods store?"

Her Social Equal

"The best in the world. The ribbon clerk is her social equal; he calls her Mary and she calls him Joe."

"Done with you; me for the ribbon counter. Anything else?"

"The storekeepers aren't apt to employ you at first; they'll be suspicious of you."

"They will be afterwards, all right. However——?"

"So you must simply call on them—walk in, locate the boss and tell him: 'I'm looking for employment.' Don't press it; just say it and get out."

"No trouble whatever about that; it's always the way when I ask for work."

"They'll send for you before long, when they make up their minds that you're a decent, moral young man; for they know you'll draw trade. And every Sunday——"

"I know: church!"

"Absolutely * * * Pick out the one the rich folks go to. Go in quietly and do just as they do; stand up and kneel, look up the hymns and sing, just when they do. Be careful not to sing too loud, or anything like that; just do it all modestly, as if you were used to it. Better go to church here two or three times and get the hang of it. * * *"

"Here, now——"

"Nearly all the wealthy codgers in such towns are deacons, you see, and though they may not speak to you for months on the street it's their business to waylay you after the service is over and shake hands with you and tell you they hope you enjoyed the sermon and ask you to come again. And you can bank on it, they'll all take notice from the first."

"It's no wonder Bartlett made you a partner, Harry."

"Now behave. I want you to get in right * * * If you follow the rules I've outlined, not only will all the girls in town be falling over themselves to get to you first, but their fond parents will be egging them on. Then all you've got to do is to pick out the one with the biggest bundle and"——

"Make a play for her?"

"Not on your life. That would be fatal. Your part is to put yourself in her way. She'll do all the courting, and when she scents the psychological moment she'll do the proposing."

"It doesn't sound natural, but you certainly seem to know what you're drooling about."

"You can anchor to that, Nat."

"And are you finished?"

"I am. Of course I'll probably think of more things to give you to, before you go."

Ask More Cars For Crippled Children's Day

By J. C. KERRISON.

Those who are desirous of assisting in the entertainment of the unfortunate and crippled children of this city by donating the use of their motor cars or by other contributions are urged to communicate with Secretary Chester I. Campbell, No. 5 Park square.

Mr. Campbell estimates that at least fifty more cars are needed to make it possible to transport all of the children to Sharon on Wednesday next. This outing will be the greatest children's outing that has ever been held in this city, the managers of the same now propose to take care of something like 800 children, which means that at least 250 motor vehicles will be needed.

Many of Boston's leading houses have made certain acceptable donations for the use and pleasure of the children, one well known member of the financial set having offered something like 1,000 flags to be distributed among the children.

Mr. Deming of the Sharon Home, who is one of the prime movers in the outing, has been doing a host of work, and he has promised the children a right down good time.

There will be no demonstrating of motor cars in this city on the day of the outing, as every one of the local dealers has placed his demonstrating cars and almost all of their operators at the disposal of the committee, which virtually means the suspension of motor business in Boston on that day.

The taking care of the operators will be another big task for the committee. The boys, however, have gotten together and arranged a nice little program of their own.

The operators propose having some field sports of their own and will, if need be, take pains to amuse the children.

* * *

The partnership heretofore existing between William Gray and Lambert Hollander, under the firm name of Gray & Davis, has been dissolved by mutual consent. Mr. Hollander believes that he has been in harness long enough, having reached the age of sixty. He feels that he has earned a rest from business cares and troubles and on July 1 will sail for Europe.

Mr. Hollander has for years been closely identified with the business interests of Amesbury, and his retirement from active business, both in the carriage and lamp departments, removes from business circles of that city one of its most active members.

Mr. Hollander's interests in the Gray & Davis has been purchased by S. Preston Morse of Boston, a close personal friend of Mr. Gray's. In making this announcement Gray & Davis say "All the traditions, etc., will be carefully observed and we will continue, as in the past to turn out the best automobile lamps made."

Julia Ward Howe Says:

The legitimate claims of home and family are never to be neglected or postponed.

Read Mrs. Howe's message to American women, written expressly for the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN on her ninety-first birthday. You will find it only in next Sunday's BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

Ballyshee

By AUGUSTA HANCOCK

THERE'S someone singing on the road that's by the bogland,
Where the cotton grass blows softly like the spindrift of the sea;
While the wind across the heather and the wild mint seems to listen
To the song that someone's singing all the way to Ballyshee.

There's someone laughing down the road, like rippling of the streamlet
'Mong feath'ry flow'ring ruhses and blue harebells by the lea;
There's someone laughing lightly like the trill of sweet elf-music,
Where a little ghost goes softly all the way to Ballyshee.

There's some one ripping on the road, beside me past the green lands,
Where long ago in springtime my Moira went with me;
And the sweet bog-myrtles flutter as if someone touch'd them fondly,
And the road is never lonely all the way to Ballyshee.

Smart Set Has a Busy Month of Wedding Bells

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

IT'S weddings, wedding invitations, wedding plans—nothing but weddings, practically, the whole month through—and while the smart set members are not taking trips into the country to attend one or coming back from the country to be guests at Trinity or King's Chapel, they are engaged in choosing their finery for the next celebration, and the one after that, and the next one still, or they are lost in the mixed pleasure and perplexity of choosing the next wedding gift that is due.

There is, as usual, too, quite a sprinkling of out-of-town brides, and nearly every day sees one of our most eligible young men lead off to New York or Providence or into even more remote parts of the country a host of his relatives and friends to help him claim the bride he has chosen from some other city.

* * *

To-day Miss Lillian Hunter of Brookline, Miss Henrietta Seelye of Northampton, Miss Barbara Seelye of Springfield and Miss Rebecca Seelye of Springfield are in New York for the wedding of Miss Mary C. Bishop, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Bishop of that city, to Dr. William E. Blodgett of Detroit. The wedding took place this afternoon at the Episcopal Church of the Epiphany on Lexington avenue. The other attendants were Miss Irene I. Bates of New York and Miss Helen B. Stanton of Brooklyn. Merrill Bishop, brother of the bride, was the best man, and the ushers were William R. Ruchmore of Plainfield, N. J., John L. Vanderbilt of Englewood, William Bishop Gates of Flatbush and Edward H. Bishop of New York.

* * *

Mrs. J. C. Anderson of this city has been chosen as the matron of honor to serve at the wedding at Larchmont Manor, N. Y., on Thursday, June 9, of Miss Gertrude Hull to Dudley Hoyt Peabody of Brooklyn. Miss Hull is the sister of Mrs. Anderson and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Hull of New York. Mr. Peabody is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Peabody of Brooklyn. Irving T. Myers of New Jersey will be the best man, and the bridesmaids will be Miss Helen Hull, sister of the bride, and Miss Eva Peabody, the bridegroom's sister. The ushers chosen are George Kissam of Long Island, Barrington Wright of Larchmont, George Abbott of Brooklyn and John G. Anderson of Boston.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic S. Isham, who have been spending the past few months at the Buckminster Hotel here, have gone to New York and will not return to Boston before next year. They are to spend the first of the year in another trip around the world.

* * *

Mrs. N. H. Luten and Miss Alma Luten of Needham sailed to-day for Europe. They are to have a four-months' tour of Switzerland and Germany.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Frothingham of this city have gone to the Berkshires. They are stopping at the Curtis Hotel in Lenox.

* * *

Orne Wilson has chosen this evening for his bachelor dinner, which he will give at Delmonico's, in New York, as his wedding to Alice Borland takes place next Wednesday. The Boston connections in this alliance are numerous and include the James Jacksons, the George C. Lees, the Gordon Abbotts, the Higginsons, the Searses, the Herberts and the Masons.

* * *

The wedding of Dr. Arthur Vannesaver Pierce of Winthrop and New Bedford to Miss Louise Howard of New Bedford took place to-day at the bride's home. It was a quiet wedding and was attended only by the relatives of the two families. Dr. Pierce is a graduate of the Boston University Medical School and was connected with the Massachusetts Homeopathic Hospital until recently. Dr. and Mrs. Pierce will be at home in New Bedford after the first of October.

* * *

The Church of the Assumption in Brookline will be the scene of a pretty wedding next Saturday at 10.30 o'clock, when Miss Alice Galvin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Francis Galvin, becomes the bride of Joseph Samuel Willoughby of Maryland. After the ceremony a reception will be held at the home of the bride's parents, for which a large number of invitations have been issued. After a wedding trip of some months the young couple will be at home after October 1 at Willoughby Crest, Philopolis, Md.

* * *

Holm Lea, the estate of the Charles S. Sargents and the Andrew Robeson Sargents in Brookline, is to be opened to the public on Saturday afternoon and all day Sunday for an exhibition of the rhododendrons, which are unusually fine this year and which are now at the height of their glory.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hurtubis, Jr., and their family are at Gloucester, where they will spend the Summer. Mr. Hurtubis will travel back and forth and spend his weekends there.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert B. Shaw have recently been visiting friends in the Berkshires.

LEGISLATORS EAGER TO AID J. P. MORGAN

Massachusetts legislators professed to be truly serious to-day over a suggestion that the sergeant-at-arms be sent over to New York with instructions to unhitch the "J. P. Morgan & Co." signs from their present moorings on Wall street and bring them over to Boston to be fastened on the front wall of the Capitol on Beacon Hill.

"When is it going to stop?" is the question asked by legislators who do not wear the Morgan tag. The "jam-it-through-quick" method of granting favors to the Morgan interests within the last twenty-four hours is causing alarm.

Moves by Both Houses.

Here is what the two legislative branches have done for the Morgan interests within the last twenty-four hours:

SENATE

Voted to bottle up the Tremont street subway so that no road but Morgan's Boston Elevated can use it till after 1942.

Voted to bottle up the East Boston tunnel for Morgan till after 1947.

Voted to bottle up the Washington street tunnel for Morgan till after 1948.

Kicked out a resolve aimed to delay this bottling up of subways and tunnels for at least a year.

Voted to authorize Morgan's Boston Elevated Railway Company to gobble up all the street railways in Massachusetts.

HOUSE

Told Morgan's New Haven Railroad to go ahead and acquire the Berkshire trolleys if it wanted to do so. Thereby laughed at the Supreme Court, at the Attorney General and at the Railroad Commission, upset the established policy of Massachusetts to keep steam and trolley roads apart, and established a precedent under which the New Haven may find it easy to gobble up trolley roads until its sister corporation, the Boston Elevated, has established physical connections with them and is ready to take them over.

Bennett Turns Accuser.

Mayor Fitzgerald and Thomas M. Babson, head of the city law department, are charged by Senator Frank P. Bennett, Jr., of Saugus, with being responsible for the "joker" amendments to the Elevated Holding bill which Bennett introduced and which the Senate adopted without even a request for a rising vote.

The Mayor and Babson, according to Bennett, requested that the amendments be offered "as a protection to the city." It has been discovered and exposed by Senator Tinkham that the signatures of Babson and Frederick E. Snow, Boston Elevated lawyer, are affixed to the slip of paper on which the Bennett amendments first appeared at the State House.

It is explained by those on the inside that Babson drew the amendments and that Snow O.K.'d them. Just why a lawyer for the "L" should have to assent to the amendments to protect Boston before the city's legal representative got ready to file them isn't quite apparent to lawmakers.

Neither is it considered apparent where the "protection" for the city of Boston comes in. On their face the amendments afford protection for the "L," but block Boston from the chance to ask for competitive bids for the use of her subway and tunnels when the present leases expire and also block the chance of obtaining higher rentals from the "L" under new leases.

The Senate has taken the position that no matter what terms may be offered for the use of the subway and tunnels at the expiration of these leases, it is a good thing to fix matters now so that the "L" will not be bothered with competitive bids by other roads nor by a demand for higher rentals.

IDEAL MAN AS PICTURED BY THE BARNARD GIRLS

NIX ON DENTISTS PROFESSORS UNDERTAKERS

What is the ideal man of the girls of Wellesley, Radcliffe, Smith, Laselle, Simmons and all the other New England colleges for young women? Come, girls speak up! Over in New York the girls of Barnard College have united on the kind of a man they call their ideal. Here he is:

Must have brown eyes.

Must have brown hair.

May wear brown, lavender or turquoise necktie.

May or may not smoke.

Must have sense of humor. This is imperative.

Must have income of $2,000 a year and prospects of more.

These facts came out when the class day exercises were held in the Columbia College gymnasium. They were part of the record prepared by the class statistician, who had gathered the preferences of the girls in regard to matrimony, along with other facts that could be reduced to figures.

The class statistics were listened to by a large gathering of undergraduates and by the Columbia seniors.

Other interesting statistics in regard to the young women who have been graduated were read by Grace Reider, the class statistician. They showed that the average 1910 girl has brown hair and eyes, weighs 130 pounds, wears a 4½ shoe and a 12½ collar. She takes ten minutes to eat her breakfast, uses eleven hairpins and has two and one-third wisdom teeth.

CUSTOMS MEN HOLD UP PANAMA HATS

NEW YORK, June 2.—Two-thirds of the Panama hats depended upon by jobbers and retailers to fill their orders for the Summer season have been seized by the government. The hats are in the bonded warehouses on the southern end of Manhattan Island and they may remain there until the season has passed. The seizure is said to be worth more than $1,000,000.

The government agents say they found an old-fashioned, easy-going set of methods in vogue in the custom house that did not suit them. A dozen hats worth all the way from $2 to $50 each would be invoiced at a flat cost of $24.

MAYOR TAKES BRIDGE PLEA TO WASHINGTON

Mayor Fitzgerald is in Washington today conferring with the War Department on the matter of the proposed new bridge over the Mystic River as recommended by Lieutenant-Colonel Barr. The Mayor, who is accompanied on the trip by City Engineer William Jackson, offered the government a compromise proposition to build a bridge to last ten years at a cost of $125,000. The new bridge recommended by Colonel Burr would cost $1,250,000, and the Mayor bases his plea on the condition of the city's finances.

CAUCUS AGREES ON POSTAL BANKS

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The House Republican caucus agreed to amend the postal savings bank bill by adopting the Davidson provision that 65 per cent. of the funds placed in the postal savings banks may be deposited in local banks, 30 per cent. may be invested in bonds, and the remaining 5 per cent. is to be held as a permanent reserve fund in the treasury.

The meeting voted appropriations of $18,000 for the purchase of land for school purposes, of $7,500 to furnish the new public library, and $500 for public band concerts.

BARONESS NAMED TO WELCOME TAFT

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

The Bank of England has reduced its minimum rate of discount from 4 to 3½ per cent.

$ $ $

Scores of operators have definitely abandoned all hopes of advancing the market this Summer. Everybody had agreed that this Summer's advance would be but a temporary affair anyhow. Now the best authorities in the Street do not think that even good crops can give the market more than temporary rallies.

$ $ $

Opinion of railroad men is that neither dividends nor wages would be reduced at present, and in fact the Atchison went ahead with a wage increase that had been prepared weeks ago. The railroads will save enough for dividends by reducing expenditures. Investors realize that this cannot be kept up forever and every strong spot in the market will be taken advantage of to liquidate freely.

$ $ $

The crops have been depended on to save the situation, but on top of the street's other troubles reports from the corn fields were discouraging. In a few days the Copper Producers' Association will make another report showing that the average daily production of the metal is the greatest on record and at the moment the street's cup seems full of bitterness to overflowing. Not for years has there been such a feeling of downright discouragement on the part of serious investors and of hilarity among those who want nothing better than an active market regardless of whether it goes up or down.

$ $ $

In the midst of all the excitement investors in Canadian stocks wear a confident smile, for the Canadian railroads are prospering amazingly under Government supervision more severe than any proposed by President Taft and their stocks are at a level that makes American railroads green with envy.

$ $ $

Even the mining stocks of Canada are ultra-substantial and next week Nipissing, which already pays 30 per cent. annually on its capital stock, will declare an extra dividend of 10 per cent., thus providing for an unexpected distribution of $600,000 cash. The Canadian stocks are somewhat removed from the hurly-burly and it would be well for American corporation managers to consider this situation before being absolutely sure that the Government ought to have nothing to say about the management of properties in the United States.

$ $ $

St. Paul went down with a terrific smash and is now on its way to par, where it should be selling when it goes on a 5 per cent. basis. By reducing its dividend to 5 per cent. St. Paul will be able to meet its bond obligations. The company is in a strong technical position, however, because, while the extension to the Pacific is not earning dividends, the parent company can get dividends in the shape of interest on the bonds issued to build that extension. The law prevents the payment of unearned dividends but justifies the payment of unearned interest on construction bonds on the theory that the interest is part of the cost of construction.

$ $ $

The question is asked how can expenses be reduced when the roads are obliged to pay more for labor, material, for supplies and for everything entering into their operating accounts? They cannot, it is declared, even curtail their outlay for repairs and renewals.

$ $ $

As for the vital point of the increased charge for services the proposals were not alarming. An expert points out that on sixth class freight the advance was to be two cents a hundred pounds, or from 25 cents to 27 cents. On first class freight it was to be 15 cents per hundred pounds to 90 cents. This is not as large as it appears. Shoes belong to the higher schedule. At present, with rate 75 cents, a case of men's shoes weighing sixty pounds is obliged to bear a transportation charge of 45 cents. As there are twelve pairs of shoes in a case it means that the transportation for a pair of shoes is 3¾ cents, that is to say the railroads carry a pair of shoes 1,000 miles for 3¾ cents. With the rate increased to 90 cents the charge would be 4½ cents.

$ $ $

Regarded dispassionately, the move is peculiarly inopportune for practically all the railroads in respect to their finances. Home investors had shown prolonged reluctance to put money in reasonably rated rail bonds. Foreigners, after long negotiations and sharp concessions, had become interested. The money is needed. Extensions and additional equipment are imperatively needed on every first-class line. The harvesting of a normal crop next Autumn must again demonstrate the necessity of better facilities. The very commercial and manufacturers' associations which have protested against an advance in rates will suffer the most by inadequate transportation.

True to expectations, the visible supply of copper in London warehouses has shown a further decrease during the past fortnight of 1,807 tons, making a total decrease for the month of May of 3,392 tons, or 7,598,080 pounds. The present visible supply stands at 106,815 tons, which compares with 113,455 tons on March 1, a reduction of 6,640 tons, or 14,873,600 pounds.

$ $ $

The vagaries of trading are well illustrated in the case of one Boston man. He went short of St. Paul Railroad stock about two years ago at 136. In the meantime he has seen the price go to above 165 and has paid $10.50 per share in dividends as the penalty of having sold something that he did not own. In to-day's break he had visions when the stock broke 130 as at a few points under that level he could almost cover in the contract and quit about even.

Butte & Balaklava is controlled by Duluth people, who have been persistent buyers from 7 to 17. The present program is to declare a 50 cent dividend payable in July, and then pay another $1 per share dividend in the Fall.

Total curb dealings in Boston for May, according to Austin & Souther, were 1,640,416 shares; Maritime led with 163,420 shares, followed by Champion with 155,140 shares, and then Massachusetts Coal with 99,290 shares. Ohio Copper had 91,252 shares; Chino, 52,877 shares and Ely Central, 40,580 shares.

Melrose has awarded $10,000 4 per cent. sewer bonds to Blake Bros. & Co. at 103.12, and $10,000 water bonds to George A. Fernald & Co. at 100.318.

Miller & Co. say. "We think the selling of stocks has been better than the buying and believe the market needs and will get plenty of liquidation at lower prices."

LOCAL COPPERS HOLD UP WELL

On the local board the copper shares hold well, though there is little trading in them. In sympathy with the New York market, which was again demoralized to-day, the miscellaneous and railroad lists were weak, with most of the selling coming from New York, and being done by arbitrage brokers. Amalgamated, Steel, Union Pacific and American Telephone were offered in large blocks, and at continued recessions, but even though Amalgamated was sold off 1¼ points the local coppers did not weaken, and very few selling orders were to be found. None of these, however, appeared to be liquidating orders.

There was some offering of United Fruit by New York, but all this was quickly absorbed by local brokers, who represent the big interests in the corporation.

SAYS LADY COOK WAS HYPNOTIZED

NEW YORK, June 2.—Mrs. Mary Sparr of Brooklyn, who procured a writ of habeas corpus for her sister, Lady Francis Cook, and then suddenly dropped the action, declared to-day that Lady Cook is the victim of hypnotic influence.

"I shall prove it in court," said Mrs. Sparr. "This thing has not been dropped—it has just begun."

Lady Cook is now living with Mr. and Mrs. John Floyd Hume in a New York apartment. Mrs. Sparr in the writ she secured charged Mr. Hume and his wife with "intending to separate Lady Cook from her family and friends, she being an old woman and feeble and possessed of large means."

Lady Cook was Tennessee Claflin, an American girl, when she married Lord Francis Cook.

"My sister is now being held under a hypnotic influence," said Mrs. Sparr. "Some one is trying to get her money away from her. I don't propose to stand by and see that done."

HIBERNIANS TO HAVE NEW ROXBURY HOME

Hibernians in Roxbury are soon to realize the hopes of the past few years, the erection of a building for their own use in the Mount Pleasant section, for negotiations are now under way for the purchase of a site on Dudley street, between Winslow and Dearborn streets and close to the quarters of the Intercolonial Club. The site comprises 10,000 square feet of land and is assessed for $12,500.

BIG INTERESTS RALLY STOCKS

NEW YORK, June 2.—Liquidation was renewed in the stock market in Wall street to-day and losses ranging from 1 to 3½ points were recorded throughout the list. Brokerage houses were crowded with customers, who sold stocks without regard to prices. It was a continuation of yesterday's slump, caused by the action of the Federal government against the railroads.

Selling was heaviest in St. Paul, which declined 3½ points to a new low record of 128. Reading, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and Amalgamated Copper were also under heavy pressure.

London sent over a higher range of prices for American stocks and these higher quotations were reflected in a steady opening in Wall street. After the first few minutes of trading, however, heavy offerings of all stocks caused a resumption of the downward movement.

On the New York market copper shares were weak in sympathy with the big market. The Bank of England reduced its discount rate to 3½ per cent., as compared with 4 per cent. last week.

The break brought the big interests to the support of the market, and all prices rallied, St. Paul moving back to 129. Belief then became current that support would be forthcoming on every material setback and that the leaders would not permit prices to break to the danger point.

CUP DEFENDER HARBOR PERIL

MARBLEHEAD, June 2.—The old America cup defender Pilgrim, now a gasolene supply vessel, is the cause of considerable excitement here. The Selectmen have called a special meeting for to-night to instruct Harbor Master Mason to order the Pilgrim to anchor a half mile from shore between Point Neck and Cat Island.

The cause of the excitement is the 2,000 gallons of gasolene aboard the Pilgrim intended for use by various power crafts in Marblehead harbor. This cargo is consigned to Edward Haley, a Marblehead dealer. The Selectmen have already ordered the Pilgrim outside of the harbor, but she is still anchored within fifty feet of shore in the midst of fifty or sixty costly crafts, and the belief is that many chances are being taken on the gasolene. If it exploded it would wreck all the yachts and the harbor front.

$6,000 IS NOW SLAYER REWARD

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 2.—The reward for the arrest and conviction of the murder of eight-year-old Alma Kellner today passed the $6,000 mark and a movement is in full swing to bring the total to $25,000 or possibly $50,000. An amount that will stir the police of every country to their utmost is demanded.

The shovel with which the murderer buried the body of the little girl under the trap door leading to St. John's Parish school cellar was found today by the police. Mrs. Joseph Wendling, wife of the missing church janitor, who is sought to clear up the murder, maintains her stolid manner.

FEARS MISSING BROTHER SLAIN

Fearful that his missing brother, Vahan Shamlian, of Mattapan, has met foul play, Edward Shamlian of Brockton is working with the Boston police on the case.

Vahan Shamlian, who lives at No. 51 Hiawatha road, Mattapan, with his cousin, John K. Shamlian, and is employed by Parker, Holmes & Company as a traveling salesman, started out on May 17 for Worcester, but has not been seen since.

The theory that Vahan has been put away by plotters is caused by the fact that the young man told his cousin, John K. Shamlian, that he had been threatened with death.

When Vahan went away he had between $50 and $100. He wore a light suit of greenish shade, a derby hat and low cut shoes. He is five feet five inches in height, weighs 160 pounds and has black hair and black eyes. His relatives say he has no bad habits.

WORLD'S BEST AVIATORS PLAN LONG FLIGHTS

NEW YORK, June 2.—International races for the fortunes offered as prizes in long distance aeroplane flights were assured to-day when it became known that two Canadian aviators, Messrs. Baldwin and McCurdy, will compete. With $90,000 in purses posted in four days and plans for another contest for $40,000 under way, prominent aviators declared that they expect the event to be made of world interest by the competition of European bird-men.

The field will be well crowded by Americans alone, however, the foremost professors of the new science having rushed to enter their names in the lists. While it is possible that neither Orville nor Wilbur Wright will drive, Wright cars will be entered.

Glenn H. Curtiss, whose Hudson Valley 150 miles flight started the sudden wave of interest that has swept the nation, will participate, and among the others who have signified their intention of competing are Charles K. Hamilton, Thomas S. Baldwin, J. C. "Bug" Mars and Charles F. Willard.

Besides the $30,000 prize for a New York-St. Louis flight, the $25,000 for the flight to Chicago and the $5,000 posted by F. H. Wheeler for a trip from Indianapolis to Chicago, private reports received here to-day from St. Louis indicate that there is no doubt of $10,000 being raised for a flight from St. Louis to Kansas City, or vice versa. Nearly one-fifth of the purse has already been subscribed.

The proposed $40,000 triangular 650-mile flight from Indianapolis to St. Louis to Chicago and back to Indianapolis, which is being arranged by President A. B. Lambert of the St. Louis Aero Club to-day attracted much attention among Eastern aviators. While the race is not scheduled to take place till October, it is believed that a big field will start.

The total purses were further increased to-day by the announcement that the Chamber of Commerce of Washington would give $20,000 for a flight from New York to the national capital on July 4.

BURGESS AVIATOR PREDICTS LONGER FLIGHTS VERY SOON

NEW YORK, June 2.—Greely S. Curtis, a New York aviator, who last April made a brilliant flight at Plum Island, Newburyport, Mass., in a machine known as the "Burgess flying fish," arrived from Europe to-day on the Teutonic. Mr. Curtis said he had succeeded in getting a motor that he believed was the lightest in the world for its horsepower, which is thirty. The aviator bought a Bleriot machine abroad which will be shipped to this country from Antwerp. Mr. Curtis praised Glen Curtiss for his Albany-New York flight, but said that much longer flights could be expected in the near future.

OFFICIAL REPORT ON COTTON CONDITION

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The department of agriculture to-day issued its first report on cotton for the season, making the condition on May 25 82 per cent., against 81.1 on May 25, 1909, and 79.7 in 1908. The report shows that the area planted this year in the United States is about 102.8 per cent. of the area planted last year, equivalent to about 33,196,000 acres, as compared with 32,292,000 acres indicated by the bureau's revised estimate of last year's planted area, an increase of about 904,000 acres, or 2.8 per cent.

NOTED NATURALIST OF MAINE DROWNS

BANGOR, Me., June 2.—News has reached here of the death by drowning near Norcross, Me., of Roy C. Getchell of Brewer. Getchell was about thirty-five years old, an expert hunter, trapper, fisherman and naturalist and one of the finest taxidermists in Maine. He had done much special work for museum and scientific collections. His father, the late Dr. Getchell, came to his death by accident several years ago, falling from a cliff on the river bank below Bangor.

We Long for Immortal Imperfection—We Can't Have It

(Reprinted by Request)

All our longings for immortality, all our plans for immortal life are based on the hope that Divine Providence will condescend to let us live in another world as we live here.

Each of us wants to be himself in the future life, and to see his friends as he knew them.

We want to preserve individuality forever and ever, when the stars shall have faded away and the days of matter ended.

But what is individuality except imperfection? You are different from Smith. Smith is different from Jones. But it is simply a difference of imperfect construction. One is more foolish than another, one is more irresponsibly moved to laughter or anger—that constitutes his personality.

Remove our imperfections and we should all be alike—smooth off all agglomerations of matter on all sides and everything would be spherical.

What would be the use of keeping so many of us if we were all perfect, and therefore all alike? One talks through his nose, one has a deep voice. But shall kind Providence provide two sets of wings for nose talkers and chest talkers? Why not make the two into one good talker and save a pair of wings?

Why not, in fact, keep just one perfect sample, and let the rest placidly drift back to nothingness? Or, better, why not take all the goodness that there is in all the men and women that ever were and melt it all down into one cosmic human being?

The rain drops, the mist and the sprays of Niagara all go back to the ocean in time. Possibly we all go back at the end to the sea of divine wisdom, whence we were sent forth to do, well or badly, our little work down here.

Future punishment? We think not.

One drop of water revives the wounded hero—another helps to give wet feet and consumption to a little child. It all depends on circumstances.

Both drops go back to the ocean. There is no rule that sends the good drop to heaven and the other to boil forever and ever in a sulphur pit.

Troubles beset us when we think of a future state, and our reason quarrels always with our longings. We all want—in heaven—to meet Voltaire with his very thin legs. But we cannot believe that those skinny shanks are to be immortal. We shall miss the snuff and the grease on Sam Johnson's collar. If an angel comes up neat and smiling and says, "Permit me to introduce myself—I am the great lexicographer," we shall say, "Tell that to some other angel. The great Samuel was dirty and wheezy, and I liked him that way."

And children. The idea of children in heaven flying about with their little fluffy wings is fascinating. But would eternal childhood be fair to them? If a babe dies while teething, shall it remain forever toothless? How shall its mother know it if it is allowed to grow up?

Listen to Heine—that marvellous genius of the Jewish race:

> Yes, yes. You talk of reunion in a transfigured shape. What would that be to me? I knew him in his old brown surtout, and so I would see him again. Thus he sat at table, the salt cellar and pepper caster on either hand. And if the pepper was on the right and the salt on the left hand he shifted them over. I knew him in a brown surtout, and so I would see him again.

Thus he spoke of his dead father. Thus many of us think and speak of those that are gone. How foolish to hope for the preservation of what is imperfect!

How important to have FAITH and to feel that reality will surpass anticipation, and that whatever IS will be the best thing for us and satisfy us utterly.

A Second Constitutional Convention

The Legislatures of twenty-nine States have made a formal demand upon Congress for the summoning of a constitutional convention.

The other day the Massachusetts Legislature came within an inch of adding its mandate to that of the twenty-nine.

Thus the country is brought within sight of a prodigious political event—the meeting of the people of the United States in their sovereign character, aloof and apart from the constitution, to take measures for the changing of the fundamental law.

The occasion of this movement is the general desire to change the mode of electing United States Senators.

But if the convention meets for the purpose of amending the constitution in this particular, there is no power that can prevent its taking action for other amendments as well.

There is very good reason why it should take further action.

The constitution expects that Congress will represent the people, and therefore that it will stand ready to shape any constitutional amendment for which there is a general demand, and submit it to the vote of the States.

But the constitution had a thrifty foresight of possible accidents.

It foresaw that the day might come when Congress should stand apart from the people.

So it provided an exceptional method of procedure by which the people themselves could upon occasion take the initiative of constitutional changes—in spite of Congress.

On the question of the popular election of Senators the Senate has steadily defied the people. Time and again the House of Representatives has passed a resolution proposing such an amendment. But the Senate has settled down upon its privileges, and, no matter which party was in power, has invariably killed the proposal.

In view of the Senate's attitude toward this effort to restore the representative principle, the national movement for a constitutional convention becomes dramatic.

This movement has advanced to its present stage without high words and almost without observation. Yet who that understands the temper of the times can doubt the American public is in motion toward the overthrow of political and economic abuses?

Apart from the direct action of a constitutional convention, the mere fact of its assembling should be of great political consequence.

It should give sharp emphasis to the well-nigh forgotten truth that the government in the United States is a mere agency in the people's business. The citizens are the principals.

There is no good reason why a constitutional convention in the twentieth century should not be made up of men of character—equal to the eighteenth century worthies who created the original instrument.

Certainly the country needs its best counsellors—in these particular years of grace.

The recommendations of such a convention—if substantially unanimous—would probably secure the necessary ratification of three-fourths of the States.

Tuesday Senator Owen of Oklahoma made an appealing speech to persuade the Senate to take voluntary action for the popular election of Senators.

The Senate hardly deserves this last chance to act without compulsion.

Upon the demand of two more State Legislatures Congress will be compelled, by the fundamental law of the land, to call the second constitutional convention of the republic.

DR. PARKHURST'S ARTICLE

THE LESSON WHICH THE COMET HAS TAUGHT

Written for the Boston American

By Dr. C. H. Parkhurst

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

MORE interesting than anything which we have been able to learn about Halley's comet is the enthusiasm, amounting almost to hysteria, with which the multitude have plunged into the task of trying to find it.

The whole world sat up late one night, and what with tumbling off roofs and getting a broken neck, or going about with the neck so craned as with difficulty to bring it back to its normal position for seeing things terrestrial, the visit of this tailed sky-tramp, if indeed it have a tail, marks an epoch in current history and will remain an epoch till something else happens inflammatory enough to burn this hide-and seek luminary out of our regard and remembrance.

First Lesson in the Art of Looking Up

But even so, the brief call made upon us by this eccentric stranger has not been without its advantages to the general public. It has persuaded some people, who may never have suspected it before, that there is something in God's world besides our own little round earth. It has taught them a first lesson in the art of looking up. It has given to one, now and then, a surprised interest in the fact that in the old Greek language the word for man meant originally "the upward-looking one."

If we have been becoming quadrupedal in our habits, out of passionate desire to get as close an eye as possible to the ground and the dirt, the comet has transiently lifted us to our proper bipedal position, and for a night and a day put us in an attitude to see the sky and the stellar paragraphs with which the Creator has inscribed it.

If there were fewer startling things happening at sea level, and more of a suddenly thrilling nature occurring overhead, it might spare us the misfortune of being so earthly, and so cramped in our range of vision and interest.

It is, perhaps, too much to expect that this momentary event will leave any permanent results behind it. And yet perhaps it will. It can, at least, be hoped that it will initiate some of the more observant ones into a continued interest in that shining population overhead of which this erratic genius that has just come and gone is nothing other than a more or less whimsical and luny member.

Many Lessons in the Sky More Important

For every hour of the day and every moment of the night there are events transpiring in the heavens, and made in some degree intelligible to us by science, that are as much more thrilling than this comic escapade of Halley's comet as sunshine is more resplendant than the languid light of a rush-candle.

* * *

UNCLE JOE CANNON, in an address given recently in this city, delivered himself of one of those pithy phrases which, as is apt to be the case with that style of utterance, is mixed in about equal proportions of truth and error.

It is a mode of speech with sufficient sensational tang to excite the taste of the listener and with just enough appearance of profundity to gratify the pride of the speaker.

He said: "No individual that ever did or ever will exist is of any real importance in a nation of ninety millions."

If he is not of real importance in one nation of 90,000,000, then the same will be true in any number of nations of 90,000,000. And that is equivalent to saying that there is nobody in the world that is of any real importance—which is saying so much as not exactly to be saying anything.

This would be not only to stigmatize the Speaker of the House of Representatives as practically a nonentity—an imputation which he might be willing, some fanciful moment, to perpetrate upon himself, but which he would hotly resent if discharged upon him by an "insurgent"—but it would be to strike a wet brush over that whole catalogue of worthies which have been the material of the world's wealth and the means of its progress.

No Man Is Ever Indispensable

Cannon's aphorism, if it means anything, means that no man in this nation or any other is indispensable. That is true, and fortunate it is that it is true. It is proved by the fact that very few are the men but pass quite out of the world's thought, even before the grass is green over their graves. They will continue to be cherished by their intimates, but are as though they had never been, so far as any public sense of loss is concerned.

People in that respect are like irons in a railway track; the rails leave off but the track goes on. There is a lot of consolation in this. The reason why even the best and the strongest are not indispensable is because their life, while it lasted, so wove itself into the threads of current life, thought and tendency as to become a fixed element in that life, in its ideas, spirit and purposes.

The good that is in men does not die with them. There is such a thing as the general mind and the general character; and the mind and character of individuals are constantly being gathered into it and, so, go along with it, like tributary streams that, by flowing into the main current, do not thereby extinguish themselves, but guarantee their permanent continuance all the way down to the sea.
